LEAD SLUG SHOWN AS EXHIBIT

Inspector Ahearn Swears That Brown Told Him Mrs. Mohr Said: "I'll Look After You"

Providence, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr burst into tears today, for the second time since the murder trial started, when a bullet dug from the automobile in which her husband was killed was introduced as evidence.

Inspector James Ahearn held the lead slug aloft so that all might see it, and Mrs. Mohr averted her head. Then as the witness was asked if this was one of the bullets that hit Dr. Mohr or Miss Burger, tears streamed down the accused widow's cheeks. Witness said the bullet was one of those fired into the auto.

Mrs. Mohr quickly recovered herself and listened with composure while Inspector Ahearn testified that he also heard Brown, Spellman and Hoalis confess that the woman had offered them $5,000 for the murder of her husband, and that they had carried out her plans.

TELLS OF "CONFESSION."

Inspector Ahearn was the second witness of the day to corroborate

KILLS SELF AFTER TREATING CHILDREN

He had been out o work for months. There was just a single nickel left in the house today. So Luiciano Godiva of No. 174 Blossom street, Lynn, took his two youngest children in his arms, went to the store down on the corner, and spent that nickel on enough candy to stuff their little mouths to joyful repletion.

They rode home on his shoulders, and he sat them down at their mother's feet, then looked out the window to where his other four children were playing.

Then Luiciano went into a back room in his tenement and set a revolver to his temple. His wife heard the explosion, and when she rushed in, to find him dead, the two little people with what was left of the candy daddy had bought them were right at her heels.

MANN WARNS OF WAR WITH ENGLAND

Washington, Jan. 25.—War with England, and not with Germany, is most to be feared by the United States, Representative Mann, Republican leader, declared on the floor of the House today, in announcing his support of the preparedness program.

Representative Mann went on record as favoring a standing army of 250,000, or even half a million men, if it is necessary. He implored his colleagues to look at the question of preparing for trouble as if in his hands rested the final responsibility for the defence of the nation.

BRAVES TO LOSE A STAR

Schmidt Plans to Retire from Baseball and Devote the Entire Time to His Meat Business

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 25.—First Baseman Charley Schmidt of the Boston Braves will in all probability retire this season, and it is understood he will devote his entire attention to the meat business in Richmond Market.

The big first sacker would not admit as much in so many words, but he did say that within the next few days he would give out a statement relative to his plans for next season.

Inasmuch as there would be no occasion for a statement if he intended to play with the Stallings squad, it was merely another way of saying that he would not play professional baseball this summer.

The decision of Schmidt to retire is not brought about as a result of any trouble with Stallings or over salary. It is merely a case of his determination to quit the game and devote his entire time to business. He has a good trade, a large number of customers, and he finds that his business is bound to suffer while he is away.

In addition, Charley is a man who does not care to stray far from home, and leaving his wife and the "kiddies" for months at a stretch has never been pleasant to him. "Schmidty" is a thrifty fellow who has saved and judiciously invested his money.

Schmidt played a prominent part in the winning of the pennant and the world's championship for Boston in 1914. His work last year was also up to the notch, and Stallings will have no easy time finding a man to fill his place.

Asked Schmidt to Reserve Decision.

At the office of the Braves Business Manager Hapgood said that last Fall Schmidt had written President Gaffney, stating that the demands of his business in Baltimore would make necessary his retirement from baseball. President Gaffney wrote the big first baseman and asked him to change his decision as he felt certain matters could be properly adjusted. So far as Gaffney was concerned the matter rested there.

When Manager Stallings was in Boston last week he heard of the matter and talked with Schmidt regarding it over the long-distance telephone. He told Schmidt that the club and Stallings himself needed him on the team and asked that he reserve decision. Schmidt stated that he would do nothing without first consulting Manager Stallings either in person or by letter. His contract with the Braves has another year to run.

Mrs. Wilson to Make Bow to Country on Preparedness Trip

Washington, Jan. 25.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON will make her bow to the country at large, starting next Friday night. The hardships of "campaigning" have no terrors for the new first lady, and she will make the entire circuit with the President on his Preparedness junket.

It will be the Middle West's first view of Mrs. Wilson. The committee on preparations in all the cities to be visited, it is understood, have taken into consideration that Mrs. Wilson is to accompany the President.

S. S. CHAMBERLAIN EDITOR OF THE AMERICAN, DEAD

San Francisco, Jan. 25.—Samuel S. Chamberlain, editor of the Boston AMERICAN and one of the ablest and most distinguished newspaper editors in the United States, died here today after an illness of several months.

So was "bulletined," today, the passing of one of the really great newspaper men of the United States. It is, indeed, a singular thing about the newspaper business that the passing of its leaders is usually chronicled thus briefly.

Mr. Chamberlain, at the time of his death the editor-in-chief of the Boston American, had at various times in his long and distinguished career been in charge of some of the most important newspaper properties in the country.

A native of York State, he was equally at home in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Boston, London, Paris and Berlin. He knew any one of these great cities as the villager knows his township, knew their histories as the other man knows the family history, was as well informed about and well acquainted with their public men as the villager is concerning his selectmen.

HAD YOUTHFUL ENTHUSIASM.

The records show that Mr. Chamberlain was in his sixty-fifth year, but his figure was that of the college athlete and his heart the heart of a boy. More than any other man whom his recent associates can recall he kept burning to the end the lamp of youthful enthusiasm.

At twenty-four he was on the New York Herald. At twenty-eight he went to the New York World, to

NEW PLAN AFFECTS POLICE

Proposal to Join License and Police Boards Made at Hearing on McCall's Recommendations

Abolishment of the Boston Licensing Board and the transfer of its duties to a new commission that will also have charge of the Boston Police Department will be considered by the Legislature under Governor McCall's sweeping recommendations for the consolidation of State boards and commissions.

When the first public hearing was begun today on the Governor's recommendations Senator Martin Hays of Brighton, chairman of the Special Committee on Consolidations, threw a scare into a roomful of interested citizens by this announcement:

"There also exist in certain cities, as for example the city of Boston, certain license boards and police commissions which are appointed by the Governor and are in fact State commissions. It has been urged that we should make an investigation of the functions of these boards and commissions, and that we, without doubt, within the scope of our powers. How

Tourist Arriving in Paris Says Troops Fight Women and Children in Berlin; Many Wounded

By International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 25.—Bloody riots occurred in Berlin on January 12 in which many civilians were shot down by troops using machine guns, according to a declaration made here today by a Portuguese citizen who claims to have been in the German capital on that date.

The Portuguese has just arrived in Paris from Germany. He declared that mobs of men and women surged through the streets of Berlin and that even children took part in the rioting.

Soldiers armed with machine guns charged into the mob, declared the Portuguese, and the guns were turned loose upon the rioters. The mobs were soon put to flight and many wounded persons were carried off to the hospitals.

By DOROTHY DIX.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 25.—One of the things that a woman is popularly believed to remember, no matter what else she forgets, is her wedding day.

Apparently Mrs. Mohr is not to be numbered among the feminine sentimentalists who cherish a hallowed recollection of their marriage morn, for so indefinite is she in her mind about the exact time at which she was led as a blushing bride to the altar that she cannot fix upon the exact date.

She contents herself with saying that her marriage to Dr. Mohr took place "upon or about May 15, 1904," although gossip asserts that the marriage certificate bears a date some six years later. But what is mere time in matters of the heart?

This interesting fact of Mrs. Mohr's failure to recall just when she was married was brought out in a battle royal between the lawyers for the State and the defence that raged the whole day long over the admission into the evidence of the papers in the various Mohr divorce suits and counter-suits about property.

Attorney-General Rice appeared in court with a bundle of blue papers that had the same effect upon Mr. Fitzgerald as the flaunting of the proverbial red rag before a mad bull.

Attorney-General Rice greatly desired to read the papers to the jury, in order to show the state of internecine warfare that raged in the Mohr family circle. Also he wished to demonstrate by them the feeling entertained by previous testimony in regard to the confessions of Brown, Spellman and Healis.

Herbert Healis, a brother of George W. Healis, the chauffeur, who was the first witness called to the stand today, swore that Brown and Spellman had confessed that they did the shooting on a day in September when he visited them at the Bristol County jail. He also identified a note, alleged to have been written by Brown, in which the latter asked that his clothing and motorcycle be turned over to Herbert Healis.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Lewis, the witness admitted that he had not told his story to the Attorney-General until after his brother's appearance on the witness stand. He said, however, that this was due to his reluctance to being drawn into the case.

Inspector Ahearn testified under cross-examination to details connected with the finding of the bullets and of the confessions of Brown and Spellman.

The witness admitted that Chief O'Neil read to Mrs. Mohr a statement made by Brown, Spellman and Healis, which he had written himself, and then, using this statement for his own information, asked her certain specific questions.

He also admitted that he could not tell whether or not the bullet found in the automobile seat was fired from the front or rear, and that it was the only bullet note in the machine. The witness denied he had discussed his testimony with other police officials.

A large number of people gathered about the automobile which brought Mrs. Mohr to the courthouse today, speaking encouragingly to her and trying to shake the hand of the accused woman.

READS MOHR LETTERS.

Mrs. Mohr arrived at the courthouse at 9:30 a. m. in a limousine. Augustus Mohr of McEwensville, Pa., brother of Dr. Mohr, accompanied her. The police were obliged to force a passageway through the crowd so that she could get into the courthouse. She was about the first person in the courtroom.

Superintendent Lake of the courthouse had another package of sympathetic letters for her. The contents evidently absorbed in them. Some of these letters contained poetry and passages from the Scriptures, according to her attorneys.

When court convened, at 9:50, Attorney William H. Lewis was talking with Brown and Spellman.

Herbert Healis was called to the witness stand for the State.

Brown, one of the defendants, looked at Herbert Healis in surprise, and whispered something to Attorney Lewis.

Assistant Attorney-General Phillips examined Healis. He testified he was employed as a repairer in a local garage.

Healis testified he was standing in the jail yard and was talked over to a window by Brown. "When I went over to the window," the witness testified, "I said: 'For God's sake, what have you boys been doing?' Brown said: 'Be done suddenly like Dr. Mohr.'

"Spellman said: 'Yes, I shot Miss Burger.' Brown said: 'We've done this trick.' Spellman said: 'Yes, I done it.' Brown said that Spellman had promised them a lot of money and that they expected to get it. He wanted me to send an attorney."

Q.—Mr. Healis, did you go with a lawyer to Bristol County Jail last September? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you go—give us the day and date? A.—I went there on Friday, September 3.

Q.—The ladies were friends of the lawyer? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you go into the jail. A.—No.

Q.—Why? A.—The jailer refused me admittance to see my brother, and I stayed outside while the lawyer and ladies went in.

Q.—Where did you stand outside? A.—In the yard.

TALKED WITH BROWN.

Q.—While you were standing there what happened? Tell the court and jury. A.—I was standing over near the shed on the right-hand side of the yard, talking to a policeman, and on looking toward a window I saw Brown with his head at the window, beckoning me to come over and see him.

Q.—Do you know Brown? A.—Yes, I do.

Q.—Did you go over and see him. A.—Yes, I went over and heard what he had to say.

Q.—Mr. Healis, tell the court and jury what Brown said? A.—When I went over to the window I said, "For God's sake, what have you boys been doing?" Brown said, "I done it. I shot Dr. Mohr" Spellman said, "Yes, I shot Miss Burger." Brown said, "We've done this trick." Spellman said, "Yes, I done it." I stood there a while and Brown asked me if I would go down to Mrs. Mohr and see her. He said that Mrs. Mohr had promised them a lot of money and that they expected to get it. He wanted her to send an attorney, I said, "I don't think she will help you." I said, "Boys, the only thing for you to do is to tell the truth." Shortly after that the lawyer came and I went to a different part of the yard.

Brown and Spellman and George, my brother. They were talking in the jail. Brown asked me to go down to Dr. Mohr's at Newport and get his clothes. I said I was writing a note. I saw him write it.

Q.—Mr. Healis, I'll show you this note and ask if it is the note you saw him writing?

Healis looked at the piece of paper, which was torn slightly at the top, and replied:

"Yes, sir. That's it."

Q.—Where was it you said Brown was writing this note? A.—It was at the middle window, where they keep the prisoners. He was on the inside, writing it on the window sill.

PAPER IS ADMITTED.

Assistant Attorney-General Phillips—Your Honor, I will offer this paper and will ask you to look at it.

Attorney Lewis objected on the ground that the paper threw no light on the large in the [illegible].

"There is nothing in it that is competent."

Assistant Attorney-General Phillips—We offer this paper for two purposes: first, to corroborate the witness, and also to show that Brown was friendly with Healis. We wish to show that the same person who wrote this note is the one who wrote the note which Miss Stevenson testified to receiving in jail."

Attorney Lewis—That's what I anticipated.

Judge Stearns—Why aren't they entitled to corroborate the testimony of a witness? I'll admit it as a basis of comparison.

The paper was admitted and marked as an exhibit by Clerk Boon.

Assistant Attorney-General Phillips then read from the paper as follows:

Kindly let Mr. Nelson Healis have the clothes at Dr. Mohr's belonging to Cecil Victor Brown. Kindly let Mr. Nelson Healis have charge of the motorcycle at the Trinity Square Garage.

(Signed) CECIL VICTOR BROWN

The witness answered all questions in a low tone. He was closely watched by Brown and Spellman.

MRS. MOHR WEEPS AS BULLET FROM DEATH CAR IS SHOWN

WHEN Inspector James Ahearn of the Providence Police Department was called to the stand he produced a bullet which, he said, he found imbedded in the front seat of the Mohr auto. He held the bullet so the judge and jury could see it. As he did so, Mrs. Mohr turned her head quickly away.

As Assistant Attorney-General Phillips asked the inspector if that was one of the bullets that hit Dr. Mohr or Miss Burger, the tears streamed down Mrs. Mohr's cheeks. This was the first time in nearly a week that the accused widow has given vent to her feelings. She quickly recovered herself after the bullet had been put away as an exhibit.

Q.—Did you ever see your brother, George, with Mrs. Elizabeth Mohr before he went to work for the doctor?

A.—On February 24, 1915, I saw them when they returned from a trip to Boston—George was demonstrating an automobile.

On cross-examination, Attorney Fitzgerald asked Herbert Healis if it wasn't a fact that his brother took a great many women out when he was demonstrating automobiles. Healis admitted that it was not an unusual event.

CALL 3RD WITNESS.

Q.—You didn't like the treatment your brother, George W. Healis, received on the witness stand the other day, did you? A.—No.

Q.—You got sore about it, didn't you, and you ran to the Attorney-General and told him the story that, [illegible]

HANDWRITING EXPERT CALLED TO TESTIFY BY PROSECUTION

Joseph Clarke, the handwriting expert who has testified previously, was the fifty-third witness to be called by the State. He testified that the note which Herbert Healis said that Brown gave him was the same handwriting as the alleged Brown alibi note.

On cross-examination, Attorney Lewis asked:

Q.—You are an expert, are you not? A.—I am.

Q.—You think you are an expert witness, don't you? A.—I do.

Q.—And you draw expert pay for it don't you? A.—Matter of opinion.

Q.—Well, I think that is expert pay When you are employed as an expert to find a similarity in handwriting you usually try to find it, don't you? A.—Yes.

SUSTAINS OBJECTION.

Q.—Is handwriting dissecting an exact science? A.—Yes.

Q.—As exact as mathematics? A.—Yes.

Q.—Yet experts disagree, don't they? A.—Yes, so does the Supreme Court.

Q.—You know that if I had the time I could get another expert to say that those pieces of paper were not written by the same man?

Attorney-General Rice—"I object, but at the same time I don't doubt but what it's true."

Attorney Lewis—"Thank you for the admission. I don't need an answer from the witness now."

The court sustained the objection.

Q.—Do you notice in Exhibit 24 that the word motorcycle is written with a hyphen? A.—Yes.

Q.—And also written with a capital C? A.—Yes.

Q.—How do you spell motorcycle? Attorney-General Rice—"We didn't put him on as a spelling expert."

Attorney Lewis—"But you can qualify him."

Witness—"I can spell it."

Attorney Lewis—"Does anyone else can spell."

This last remark caused laughter in the courtroom.

Clark then answered:

"It is spelled with a hyphen."

ANSWERS BY NOD.

Q.—Then the one that wrote "motorcycle" in Exhibit 24 knew how, and the one who wrote "motorcycle" in Exhibit 25 didn't. That's correct, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You did find that certain letters were different, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You found that the capital M was different, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you found that the small letters were different, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you found the slants in the writing of the small letters peculiar. That's right, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Clark was questioned as to the accuracy of the slants, loops, figures, curves, strokes and capital letters. Witness thought some were different and some were similar. He thought the "pictorial effect" of each exhibit was different, after he had become tangled in a mesh of verbiage concerning letters and numerals, thrown at him by Attorney Lewis.

Attorney Lewis paid particular attention to the letters "H" and "L" in comparison with those in the notes alleged to have been written by Brown. Clark became confused under the questioning of Lewis and on one occasion he nodded his head in reply to a question. Attorney Lewis, satisfied that the witness had given an answer in his favor, turned to the court and said:

"He says yes by nodding his head."

Somebody at the Attorney-General's table remarked that the witness had not answered. Attorney Lewis turned to the spectators and said, jokingly:

"Where's that voice I heard."

Attorney-General Rice, with much indignation, said:

"The witness did not answer."

Judge Stearns—He did answer by nodding his head, as Mr. Lewis said. Next question.

MRS. MOHR WEEPS.

Inspector James Ahearn of the Providence police department, took the witness stand and produced a bullet that he found imbedded in the rear of the front seat of the automobile in which Dr. Mohr was riding on the night he was shot and killed.

Inspector Ahearn held the bullet high so that judge and jury could see it, and as he did so, Mrs. Mohr turned her head away quickly. As Assistant Attorney-General Phillips asked the police inspector if that was one of the bullets that hit Dr. Mohr or Miss Burger, the tears streamed down Mrs. Mohr's cheeks. This was the first time in nearly a week that she has given vent to her feelings.

POLICE INSPECTOR TELLS OF THE ARREST OF SPELLMAN

Attorney John B. Edwards, counsel for Spellman, then took the witness in hand for cross-examination. Q.—Where was Spellman when you found him, captain? A.—In bed at No. 25 Gadsden street.

Q.—And when you brought him to the station and he was question by Captain O'Neil, he denied all knowledge of the affair, didn't he? A.—He did at first.

Q.—Had he been cautioned before he made his statement that whatever he said would be used again him? A.—I don't think he was.

Q.—When Brown was talking where was Healis at the time? A.—In the license department.

Q.—Is that department on the same floor? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many openings are there leading to the outside from the license department room? A.—Several.

Q.—Which door was Spellman near with reference to the license department room? A.—He was near the front door.

Q.—Was anybody between him and the door? A.—Yes.

ASKED ABOUT DATES.

Q.—And who was it, captain? A.—I was between him and the door.

Q.—Was Spellman looking toward the door or away from it? A.—Away from it.

Q.—Are you sure about that, captain? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time of the morning was it when Mr. Spellman was arrested, captain? A.—Between 4:30 and 5 o'clock in the morning.

Q.—And what was the date that Spellman was arrested? A.—On the morning of September 2.

Q.—And are you sure about that date, captain? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the shooting occurred on the night of August 31? A.—Yes.

The witness was then questioned in cross-examination by Attorney Lewis, counsel for Brown.

Q.—When you found Spellman he was fast asleep, wasn't he? A.—I didn't go up to the room first.

Q.—And you've read all about the case so far in the newspapers? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you read what Chief Robbins said? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you read what Chief O'Neil said? A.—Yes.

Q.—And your testimony of the alleged confession is merely cumulative?

Q.—You know that in police circles one of the quickest ways of finding out who committed a crime is to get a confession? A.—Well, we question suspects.

Q.—You heard Chief O'Neil read a paper to Mrs. Mohr on the morning she was arrested, and then using this paper for his own information he asked her certain specific questions?

Attorney General Rice—I object. He does not say what this paper is.

Attorney Lewis—It is my turn at the bat if you please.

Attorney General Rice—I admit that, but I don't like so many balls. I want clean hits."

READ STATEMENT.

Q.—How about answering my question?

A.—I remember that Chief O'Neil let Mrs. Mohr read a statement that Brown, Healis and Spellman had made to him. This statement implicated her in the murder of Dr. Mohr.

Q.—But Chief O'Neil wrote that statement himself, didn't he? A.—Yes, I believe he did.

Q.—When you found the bullet in the back of the seat where the chauffeur sat did you know how it was imbedded in the woodwork? A.—No. I couldn't see.

Q.—Then you can't tell us whether it was fired from the front or from the rear of the car can you? A.—No.

On cross-examination Attorney Fitzgerald asked two questions.

Q.—Did you examine the automobile in which Dr. Mohr was killed at the Rhode Island Hospital or at the police station? A.—At police headquarters.

Q.—Were there any other bullet holes in the automobile except the one you have mentioned? A.—No.

Mrs. Mohr is to be the first witness in her own defense, it was decided today by her attorneys, after long deliberation, in which she made them understand that she not only does not fear the ordeal, but welcomes the opportunity to tell, in her own words, her story.

This decision was influenced by the fact that the strength of the trial has developed in the widow of the murdered physician an odd tendency to neurotic calmness. Although she has succeeded in overcoming this so far, her attorneys, to prevent any possibility of sickness withholding her from testifying, decided that it would be safest to start their fight for her freedom by calling her first of all.

SURPRISE TO FRIENDS.

The report that Mrs. Mohr was suffering from neuritis came as more

HOW TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

This Home Made Mixture Removes Dandruff and Stops the Hair From Falling Out.

The following simple recipe which can be mixed at home, or put up by any druggist, will quickly remove dandruff and stop the hair from falling out.

To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barlo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the hair of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, and relieves itching and scalp disease.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 340, "We be heard of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found." In the examination products and associated pneumonia a very tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. In such conditions alone should the term 'healing' be applied."

The success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is no doubt due partly to its content of a lime salt in such combination with other suitable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

It is worth a trial, unless other treatment already is succeeding. We make no promises concerning it any more than do reputable physicians with their prescriptions, but since it contains no opiates, narcotic or habit-forming drugs it is safe. Sold by all Riker Drug Stores and leading druggists.

PICTURES 'GAME OF WORDS'

By MRS. JACQUES FUTRELLE.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 25.—Bubbling like fine champagne, Miss Gertrude Stevenson, a Boston newspaper reporter, resumed the stand for the prosecution in the Mohr trial today, and, under the clever manipulation of Attorney William H. Lewis, gave a slip to what might otherwise have resulted in a technical, weary day.

Miss Stevenson was wound up and set going immediately after the roll call of the jury, and the pace she set in giving Attorney Lewis her answers was so fast and furious that before many minutes passed she had all the learned attorneys amazed, astounded, breathless, trying to follow her exhilarating game.

It was a truly feminine game, you see, played in true feminine fashion, and mere man at first was not familiar with the rules. He didn't know how to start, and what to do when he started, and altogether he was at his wits' end in a few minutes trying to figure it all out.

GIRL PLAYS GAME OF WORDS.

It was a game of words, all sorts of words, long words and short words, and other kind of words, falling from the lips of a sagacious girl in a witness box at a murder trial; a game of words that violated ethics and airily cast aside court traditions; the chattiest, merriest little game I ever expect to see played in a courtroom.

A game played with such charming insouciance that Justice Stearns, the courteous, didn't have the heart to interfere and stop it. I suppose he could have stopped it, although the Attorney-General tried it and couldn't.

Watching it, amazed, astounded, breathless ourselves, we forgot for a moment that we were present at a murder trial where a woman's liberty for life, perhaps, was hanging in the balance; we forgot everything except that Miss Stevenson was talking.

PROVES AID TO DEFENCE.

Attorney Lewis was the first to recover and get into the game, sense what it was all about, and, in his clever hands Miss Stevenson was scoring point after point for the defence before Attorney-General Rice, whose witness she was, could get his breath and interfere.

At least try to interfere. Miss Stevenson evidently was so delighted with her game that she refused to consider the Attorney-General's objections, and kept right on talking.

Attorney Lewis, two Attorneys-General and Justice Stearns had a hard time getting a word in edgewise.

The game of words, as played by Miss Stevenson, was a curious one. It consisted in long, exhaustive details of conversations, pro and con, that kept the Attorney-General on his feet exhorting, commanding their cessation.

All to no purpose. He was helpless.

DICTATES OWN QUESTIONS.

Attorney Lewis, playing fairly and squarely, even tried to help his adversary by a plea that she should not answer his questions until the Attorney-General had a chance to object, and still Miss Stevenson swored. It was necessary at times for Miss Stevenson to dictate to the defence, the prosecution, even the Honorable Superior Court himself, just what questions should be asked her so that the game could proceed.

The game didn't have any such thing as "yes" and "no" in it, except once or twice, introduced as a dazzling variation, thereby lending it unusual interest.

Attorney Lewis at last succeeded in coaxing one of the small, expressive words from her lips. He threw his arms into the air in triumph, and Attorney-General Rice breathed a sigh of delicious content.

It was evident that Miss Stevenson didn't like a negro in the game. She made this decidedly clear when Attorney Lewis asked her if she had not used her personal charms to gain the confidence of the three negro boys accused of the crime of which she had visited them in the jail at Bristol immediately after their arrest.

Miss Stevenson answered that the question itself was an insult, and Attorney Lewis allowed her to score without comment or argument.

LEWIS SCORES IN GAME.

He had forced upon him the disagreeable duty of having to prove her occasionally guilty of prevarication. This he did reluctantly, evidently realizing his handicap of color. He proceeded like a true gentleman, intelligently, courteously and with a surprising delicacy of feeling, and scored the biggest point in all the game, that of discrediting this important witness for the prosecution.

It was a beautiful little game and a merry little diversion in the long, weary trial. And it amused everyone except Mrs. Mohr, who sat quite still through it all, looking a little bored at first, then rather sympathetic when she realized this charming girl's ridiculous plight, humiliated, discredited and growing hysterical before the game was ended.

Miss Stevenson just would have the last word, though, and Attorney Lewis, and the victor, retired gracefully, leaving her to run down gently. The score was large and the record showed a gain of some thousand words.

UNUSUAL DAY AT TRIAL.

Mr. Fitzgerald did not get into the game on the cross-examination, just why I do not know, unless he figured that Miss Stevenson had said quite enough.

The rest of the day was taken up in a most unusual manner. With newspaper men on the stand giving testimony for the first time perhaps in the history of a murder trial. With all the learned attorneys in the case struggling with legal technicalities and delving deep into Blackstone in an effort to settle the question of the admissibility of a bulky bundle of court records.

Also Clerk of Court Robert Root on the stand in the prosecution's endeavor to introduce these court records connected with various legal difficulties between Dr. Mohr and his wife for two years prior to his murder.

It appeared to me that the prosecution was raking over the coals of a past litigation to rekindle a dying fire.

DOROTHY DIX PICTURES CALL OF REVENGE IN MOHR TRIAL

Mrs. Mohr for Dr. Mohr, and Dr. Mohr for Mrs. Mohr, which was set forth with great frankness and much of what is called "pep" and "ginger."

Above all, the Attorney-General wanted to show by these papers that George Healis, the chauffeur, spoke the truth when he testified that a few days before the slaying of Dr. Mohr, Mrs. Mohr had urged haste in the deed upon him and Victor Brown, saying that it was now or never, as the doctor's divorce suit against her was coming up the next week.

AIMED TO SHOW HATRED.

These papers, the Attorney-General contended, were as a mirror in which the jury might see reflected the hatred and bitterness of soul she felt toward her husband, and the fear she entertained of the revelations that would be made concerning her in the divorce trial.

Mr. Fitzgerald greatly desired that these papers should not be put in evidence. In fact, he was determined that they should not, and hour after hour, with every bit of the cunning and adroitness at his command, he fought against their admission.

In the early rounds he gained first blood in the duel of wits, because he succeeded in having read to the jury Mrs. Mohr's appeal for divorce, in which she charged Dr. Mohr with drunkenness and of the morphine and chloral habit.

Also he succeeded in getting excluded from the records the particulars of Dr. Mohr's counterbill of divorce against his wife, in which he accused her likewise of infidelity and with cruel and inhuman treatment, but later on the judge excluded both divorce petitions.

So, to all intents and purposes, the legal battle ended in a draw, with the jury still in the trenches.

Complicated with the divorce suits were various suits about property. Mrs. Mohr suing for injunctions to prevent her husband from disposing of his property, and Dr. Mohr getting out injunctions against her leaving, which, added to which were contempt of court proceedings on both, making as pretty a battle of legal fish as was ever cooked up.

ONE SUIT AFTER ANOTHER.

The Mohr Newport villa, called Montpelier, was raided first by one and then by the other, and bitter were the recriminations of husband and wife over the silver spoons and rugs and household furnishings that were carried away and which each claimed as his or her private property. Wherefore the suits.

Indeed, whatever other faults this worthy family may have had, it can be said of them that they were little less than manna sent by heaven to the lawyers of these parts, for with the Mohrs life was just one lawsuit after another.

The court records simply bristled with the legal aspects of Dr. Mohr's sentimental affairs. In one of these the aggrieved party was a young woman cousin of Mrs. Mohr's, who claimed that Mrs. Mohr had advised her to avenge her wrongs by shooting the doctor.

While as for Mrs. Mohr, little Miss Flits, of the Circumlocution office, in Dickens' story "Bleak House," has nothing on her as a litigant, and the account of some of her legal battles shed an interesting, if not pertinent, light on the present case.

For the most part Mrs. Mohr has taken little part in conducting her own case, but when the divorce proceedings were before the court she waked up into sudden activity and whispered continually to her personal attorney, Mr. Cushing.

Her inexpressive face kindled into a sudden animation. It was a stirring of the waters of bitterness in her soul that roused her out of the lethargy into which she seems to fall for hours at a time, so that she appears scarcely to know what is passing on about her.

HATE THE POTENT EMOTION.

After all, hate is the most potent emotion that ever animates the human heart, and looking at Mrs. Mohr, when the divorce proceedings were discussed, you sensed that were she dying she would rally to the call of revenge against the man who cast her aside and dented her a place in the sun of his prosperity, as a soldier does to the bugle call to battle.

Beyond the fight over admission of the Mohr divorce papers into the case, the only other interesting incident of the day was the testimony of two Boston newspaper reporters as to their interview with the three colored lads in the jail at Bristol.

On Friday Miss Stevenson, one of the reporters, had told of her visit to the boys and said that when she had asked why they confessed, that Brown had shrugged his shoulders and said that Healis had lost his nerve and Healis had replied:

"Well, I did not spill anything until Wednesday," and Brown and Spellman had said that inasmuch as Healis had told, they thought they might as well tell too.

Then the boys had asked how Mrs. Mohr was and when Miss Stevenson said she was feeling badly, Brown had said, "You tell her not to feel badly, that if she would stick to us we would stick to her," and that Brown had then given her a paper containing an alibi he had made out and asked her to give it to his sister.

Attorney Lewis, Brown's lawyer, put Miss Stevenson through a gruelling cross-examination, but in no way shook her story, which was further confirmed by Mr. Hedlund, another Boston reporter, who had been present at the interview.

HINT OF DEFENCE THRILLS.

The testimony of these two witnesses is very important, as the one hope that the defence of the boys has, is to convince the jury that the confession of Brown and Spellman was obtained from them by third-degree methods, and that they were put through such torture that they would have confessed anything rather than endure further sufferings. The State vigorously denies this charge, but it makes the outside repudiation of the inquisition theory valuable.

The State hopes to complete its case today with the firing of its 42-centimeter gun, Captain Monihan, who has done such clever detective work on the case. It is largely owing to his remarkable sleuthing that the State has been able to make George Healis' testimony so effective by buttressing up his every statement by reliable witnesses.

Then comes the defence, which is still a secret, but it is rumored to be full of surprises and thrills, though there is small liability of Mrs. Mohr herself being put on the stand.

DIVORCE CLASH TOLD BY SOPHIE TREADWELL

By SOPHIE TREADWELL.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 25.—There were twenty-six different papers filed in the Mohr divorce case during the year and a half of domestic wrangling that finally was ended by Dr. Mohr's murder. These twenty-six papers were brought into court, identified, described, discussed and then withdrawn.

Their temporary appearance left but little weight as evidence, but threw great light on the state of mind and the state of soul of Dr. Mohr and his wife during all these months.

The State sought to introduce these papers, holding that they had had a great effect upon Mrs. Mohr, "mentally, morally and physically," and also to corroborate the testimony of Healis when he said that Mrs. Mohr had told him her divorce case was about to come up in court, and so the killing of her husband "should be done at once."

WIDOW HAD NOTHING TO FEAR.

Counsel for Mrs. Mohr objected. John J. Fitzgerald, explaining their stand, said:

"If Mr. Rice is intending to introduce these documents to show that Mrs. Mohr had anything to fear, we want to know it. We are going to go into this question and show that she had absolutely nothing to fear."

The domestic difficulties of the Mohrs became a matter of the court record on February 7, 1914, when Mrs. Mohr filed a petition for a separation, alleging cruelty.

On June 6 the doctor filed a cross-petition, praying for absolute divorce, but although this is a matter of public record, Attorney Fitzgerald prevented the alleged charges against his client going into the record in this case.

On July 6 Mrs. Mohr filed an amended petition. By a clever ruse of Fitzgerald her allegations against the doctor in this document were introduced, although Mohr's allegations against her had just been excluded.

LONG FIGHT ON PAPERS.

In this amended petition Mrs. Mohr charged her husband with drunkenness, unfaithfulness and the habitual use of opium, morphine and chloral.

These were the three most important papers among the pile of documents brought into court by Attorney Rice. There were many injunctions restraining Dr. Mohr from disposing of any of his property.

Counsel for both sides kept up a continual argument as to the admissibility of the various papers. The arguments took up the greater part of the day, and reached their climax over the introduction of the cross-petition of Dr. Mohr, in which he asked an absolute divorce from Mrs. Mohr.

It has been the contention of the State that worry over this impending action was one of the motives that led Mrs. Mohr to seek the death of her husband. The State said that she was in a state of fear, dreading the publicity of court action on the charges involved.

COURT STATES STAND.

Her lawyers insisted that if this paper be made a matter of court record to back up the prosecution's theory of fear as a crime motive, counsel for Mrs. Mohr should be given the opportunity to go into the truth of falsity of Dr. Mohr's charges against his wife, as showing whether or not she had anything to fear.

"I do not propose to try in this case the domestic difficulties of the Mohr family," was Judge Stearns' final comment, and he ruled that all the divorce papers be excluded from the record.

A significant point that came out in the mass of lawyers' wrangling is that, while in her divorce proceedings Mrs. Mohr alleged that she was married "on or about May 15, 1903," the date that Dr. Mohr gave for the marriage in his petition was not permitted to be read.

"Is that petition for divorce from bed and board or for absolute divorce?" asked Attorney-General Rice of Clerk Root, who was identifying the papers.

"Absolute."

CROWD IN SUDDEN STIR.

"Did that petition allege when the doctor married Mrs. Mohr?"

Mr. Fitzgerald interrupted by asking: "Does it allege he never married here?"

The court asked if Mr. Fitzgerald objected, and said he would sustain the objection. Mr. Fitzgerald said that if the State was going to bring such matters up, the defence wanted the whole story told, and that the defence would bring the whole thing out.

When this point in the proceedings was reported there was a sudden awakening of interest throughout the courtroom, that for an hour before had been wrapped in the drowsiness of long legal discussions. But this feature of the case, that has threatened to come forth several times before, was once again skilfully avoided.

MISS STEVENSON DECLARES SHE DID NOT BREAK DOWN

To the Editor of the AMERICAN:

I regret to find in the report Monday of my testimony in the Mohr case several misstatements, of which the most flagrant are contained in this paragraph:

"Miss Gertrude E. Stevenson, the Boston newspaper woman who claimed to have secured from Brown, Spellman and Healis admissions damaging to Mrs. Mohr, broke down and wept hysterically today after being cross-examined by William H. Lewis, counsel for Brown. He brought out the fact that she had been the inmate of a sanatorium, would go to any lengths to get a story and was prejudiced against negroes."

I did not break down at all. There was no occasion for breaking down. I testified that I went to a sanatorium for treatment for nervous prostration in the Fall of 1914 and left there in January, 1915. I said I did not have any prejudice against negroes; on the contrary I had sympathy for these two defendants. I was not asked if I would go to any lengths to get a story. I was asked if I would do almost anything to get a story and I said I would not.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON WATER WAGON

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact, to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's ingestion of waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate is so simple anyone is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanse, sweeten and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the internal organs. Those who are constipated, bilious, have attacks, sour stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow, complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside bathing will make you both looking and feeling better in every way.—Advertisement.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn, gray, faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant by morning's light if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell you've applied anything.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, or those who have it thin, have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become beautifully dark and possess all dandruff, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks don't get around on get here with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger. delighted with your dark, handsome hair and you'll look and feel younger within a few days.—Advertisement.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition in Winter

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the winter term. These things which the seems, tend to aid wind and weather in roughening and coarsening the skin, ordinarily speaking, but will do more for the completion, and without encouraging the skin to chap, crack or become harsh and leathery, is the real appearance for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of dust and dirt which have been spoiled to white or transparency. By regularly using this complexion clear, white and soft, it does more than anything else to give that countenance that one of the arts or artifice commonly employed, the use of mercolized wax obtainable at any druggist will completely remove the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from wrinkling or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath with a teaspoonful of powdered saxolite dissolved in a pint of witch hazel.—Advertisement.

ACUTE AND CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, hence it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. Science has long since proved the truth that no remedy has been found within it to relieve all the pain and suffering of rheumatism unless it overcomes the cause of the trouble. This has been given a trial. In the hands of one experienced in the use of this remedy it is brought out with the utmost satisfaction to the sufferer, so much so that it has become a great favorite with physicians. All physicians know that every minute particle of medicine is aided by the administration of plenty of water to flush the kidneys and relieve the nervous system and Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets are a combination of diuretics which by each dose not only flush the kidneys but also neutralize over all other remedies for the cause of this painful suffering and misery. These tablets can be purchased at any druggist's, or send 50 cents in stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and a box containing a full treatment will be sent you postpaid. Advertisement Tablets.

Just try it and see how quickly the dandruff disappears, the hair stops coming out and the scalp becomes healthy. Moisten a sponge or soft cloth with water and rub it lightly through your hair, taking only a small strand at a time. Do this until the whole head is dampened. The effect is surprising. CHAPTER II.

When Congress appropriated $300,000 and a little more in the year 1797 for the construction of the frigate Constitution there was no immediate fear of war.

But those were rough times, especially on the sea, and it was specifically provided by the terms of the act that the New United States that a merchant marine which had begun to push its trade to the farthest ports of the world needed protection of a substantial nature.

Not only were there possibilities of misunderstandings and disagreements with Great Britain and other first-class nations, but the seas were infested with pirates who were beginning to make voyages unsafe for merchantmen.

It was therefore determined to build three first-class frigates in 1797 —to be followed by others as soon as practicable.

The three other ships built at the same time as the Constitution were the United States and the Constellation—all three costing about the same and of about equal tonnage.

The United States was launched at Philadelphia, the Constellation in Baltimore and the Constitution in Boston. The Constitution was launched on the plans of the Boston-made frigate, Old and experienced seamen were consulted, and Colonel Wilson, naval engineers of the United States navy her lines were drawn and redrawn but there is no more improvements were suggested.

In the first place the heaviest and most powerful ships ever launched, then mistress of the seas—were constructed and all points nicely calculated.

While not necessarily striving for superior tonnage, every effort was exerted to build a ship that would be superior to anything in England, possessed for speed, easy manipulation and stanchness. Future events proved how wisely the best available tools wrought.

She was built at Hartley's shipyard, off Atlantic avenue, by the landing which afterward bore her name and which is still known as the Constitution Wharf.

Of her keel, ribs, beams and decks the best and toughest oak from Massachusetts and New Hampshire forests was used. More than eighteen months for receiving a hearing before the Naval Claims Board. Cassidy has just completed a year of his sentence.

EDITOR IN CHIEF OF AMERICAN IS DEAD

return in two or three years to the evening edition of the Herald.

At thirty-three he began a long experience in France, and, in 1835, he founded La Matin, continuing for three years as its editor.

Returning to the United States, Mr. Chamberlain became, in 1838, the editor of the San Francisco Examiner, which three years previously had been founded by the property of William Randolph Hearst.

Almost continuously from that time Mr. Chamberlain had been associated with Mr. Hearst in his newspaper and magazine enterprises.

In 1885—he was forty-four then—he came East from the Examiner to assume editorial command of the New York American. Two years later he was named supervising editor of all three Hearst newspapers, a commanding position which he filled with characteristic zeal, ability and loyalty for ten years thereafter.

EDITED THE COSMOPOLITAN.

Mr. Chamberlain was in the editorial chair of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, since which time he had been back with the Examiner in San Francisco, and, since the Fall of 1914, its editorial charge in Boston.

He had taken to Mr. Chamberlain's lot to make a number of trips to Europe, some thirty or more, and to spend long periods in London, Paris and Berlin. In each case he had rare experiences in European public life. While he had the modesty which is one of the virtues of greatness, his experience and his natural gifts made him one of the most companionable of men and one of the best of raconteurs.

When he came to Boston as editor-in-chief of the AMERICAN, Mr. Chamberlain was sixty-three years old. In a few months he had become ardently attached to the city, its industries and its people. He had been here many times before, to stay a day or two at a time, but this was his first experience in "getting acquainted."

WANTED TO BE A BOSTONIAN.

"I wish I had settled here thirty years ago," he said more than once, "for I like Boston better than any city in the world—except San Francisco."

His big heart, his kindly manner, his vast experience with men and the world, and above all his love for humanity, or humankind, made him the one engineer in a million to work for, and with, and remember lovingly always. It is as difficult to write a line about him as it would be to report the passing of a loving and well-beloved father. The first message that came by telegraph today from California brought to the men and women and boys in the editorial department of the Boston AMERICAN the saddest news that could have come to the Boston AMERICAN family since the establishment of this newspaper.

BRIGGS DEFENDS STORAGE OF EGGS

Secretary Alton E. Briggs of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, appearing before the Public Health Committee said the cold storage bill, said he ate this morning two eggs which had been in cold storage for at least nine months.

He looked alright.

Briggs said if it were not for storage eggs, the price of the fresh variety would be beyond the reach people consumed 8,000 cases of eggs day in November, he said, while the production for the month was only 58,000 cases.

Notwithstanding his healthful appearance, Representative Gibin and Curran, Mrs. Anna Steinauer, the Boston woman policeman, thought a bill should be passed to limit the storage of eggs to six months.

ABOLITION OF LICENSE BOARD PROPOSED

far we shall go in this matter will be decided later."

NOTE OF WARNING.

That a sentiment to consolidate the administration of Boston's license and police departments under new heads has reached the ears of the committee was admitted by one of the members at the close of the hearing.

In his opening remarks Senator Hays also sounded a note of warning to State boards and commissions that may eventually find it necessary to modify their interests and lobby against the Governor's sweeping recommendations.

"This committee," said Senato Hays, "will especially resent any attempt to influence the committee by sending to us personal friends or members of our respective constituencies.

"It is our intention to notify the various commissions of all hearings and invite them and to request them to have a representative present. The information which they can give will be of great value. We wish this information, however, to be given publicly. The committee prefers not to have members of commissions seek them out individually and privately to convey information."

How broad is the scope of Governor McCall's recommendations for boards for Hays said the committee can only take consideration the abolition or consolidation of every board and commission in the State.

GIVES HOUR "RUBBER STAMP."

The committee today concerned itself with the proposed merger of the Efficiency and Economy Commission with the Civil Service Commission, and the placing of all commission members under civil service.

President Wells of the Senate, Speaker Cox of the House, Secretary of State Langtry and numerous commission members were in attendance.

Commissioner White of the Efficiency and Economy Commission suggested that the question of abolishing commissions and the establishment of departmental bureaus, under the Governor, should be considered by a constitutional convention. Under the present system, he said, the Governor is merely an "honorable rubber stamp" devoid of authority.

TAXI DRIVER IS ROBBED AT GUN POINT

After a thrilling chase through down-town streets early today, during which four shots were fired by policemen, four young men were arrested, charged with the robbery of $20 and an automobile in Worcester late last night.

The capture and arrest of the men is due to the cleverness and daring of Patrolman John J. Cronin and Harry Butler of the Lagrange street station, who commandeered an auto and chased the suspects, one of whom, the police say, was armed with a loaded revolver of the latest type.

The suspects are:

Anthony Sapio, twenty-one; Thomas Delmegro, twenty-two, both of Worcester; James Ryan, twenty-three, of Chicago, and Edward F. Harris, twenty-four, of New York city.

Shortly after midnight Boston police were notified that Morris Simons of Worcester had been robbed of $20 in cash and his taxicab by four men who had engaged him to take them from Worcester to Clinton. Simons was held up at the point of a gun when the auto with his passengers was near the Worcester-Boston line, on the road from Worcester to Clinton.

Shortly after 4 o'clock this morning Patrolman Cronin, on the Park square beat, saw an automobile coming down Columbus avenue.

Concealing himself Cronin waited until the car had approached, when he slipped out and commanded the driver to stop.

The latter paid no attention to the order, but kept on. Cronin jumped out and landed on the running board of the machine, and drawing his revolver ordered the operator to drive at his bidding.

When in front of the Colonial Theatre, the police say, Delmegro, who was operating the car, deliberately stalled the engine. Still covering the four men with his gun the officer made Delmegro get out, crank up the machine and continue.

Between the theatre and the Lagrange street station, Delmegro, according to Cronin, made two attempts to throw the patrolman off the running board, by suddenly speeding up the car. Both attempts were failures.

At the station, while Delmegro and Sapio were being taken in by other officers, Ryan and Harris jumped out and into a car on Lagrange street from Washington street, joined him.

With the fugitives racing up Tremont street toward Temple place, the policemen commandeered a public automobile at Boylston and Tremont streets and renewed the chase.

On Temple place, near Washington street, the policemen jumped from the car and Harris was captured.

Ryan eluded Patrolman Butler's grasp and continued in his flight into Avon street to Chauncy street to Summer street. On Summer street, Patrolman Butler drew his revolver and fired three shots at him. Sergeant John B. Clifford of the Court square station heard the shots, joined in the chase. He, too, fired a shot into the air.

Ryan saw Clifford as he turned into Kingston street and gave up. He was placed under to arrest by Patrolman Butler.

All the men are now at the Lagrange street station on the charge of robbery and are being held for the Worcester police.

According to the story that comes from Worcester, Simons, who has an auto stand near City Hall, was engaged to take four men to Clinton. They gave him $15 for the job.

When the car was near the city line Simons says that one of the men leveled a gun at his head and ordered him to turn the machine about. Hesitation on the part of Simons was followed by a shot into the air.

He hesitated no longer. He was ordered out of the car, one of the men went through his pockets, taking the $15 they had paid him and $5 of his own money. They left him to walk back to Worcester and made off in the car.

COLD AIR MAKES NEW HAIR, 'DOC' COOK FINDS

"Doc" Cook, just back in this country from the Old World, announces a new discovery that is much nearer the human heart than the North Pole of famous controversy.

He has found that cold air makes hair grow.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, to use his full name, arrived in New York on the steamer Kristianiafjord from Bergen. Dispatches today from New York noted the rich and healthy look of the "Doc's" blonde locks.

"I have found a new hair tonic," he said. "It is cold air."

All the bald-headed men in hearing agreed that, if Dr. Cook has put them on the trail of an infallible hair-grower, all North Pole troubles matter not.

The roof of the brain, they argued, is much more important to humanity than the roof of the world.

EVERETT MAN HAD SPENT A FORTUNE

M. B. Goddard of 740 Broadway Never Received Benefit Until Took Plant Juice.

There is a modern remedy for all stomach, liver and kidney trouble that is magical in its effect, and that is Plant Juice, the great herbal tonic. It goes to the seat of trouble, rectifies the wrong done to the body by getting at the cause of the trouble. It feeds to the nerve bundles vigor and vitality, and they, in turn, feed the different functional organs the strength to do their work quickly and thoroughly, and makes a permanent cure.

Hundreds have testified to the truth of this statement and daily testimonials are pouring in from local people telling of the great benefit they have received from Plant Juice. One of the most recent is that of Mr. M. B. Goddard, who resides at No. 740 Broadway, Everett, who has been a resident for 29 years and is employed by a large manufactory of this city. He stated:

"For 30 years I have suffered antold agony with cancer of the stomach and bowels and my stomach was in such a weak condition that I could not keep any solid food in it and had to live on milk and eggs. My food fermented in my stomach, which bloated with gas and was in constant pain. I got so nervous I could not sleep at night and felt so weak in the morning I could hardly get around. I have spent hundreds of dollars in order to get relief, but got none whatever. As a last resort I decided to try your Plant Juice, and am glad to state to the Boston public that it has completely cured me. I have now taken four bottles and nothing else, and feel like a new man, and if any person doubts my word they can call at my home and I will be glad to tell them all about it. Plant Juice was worth a hundred dollars to me, and more."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Company's store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public, and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, eat moderately, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid. This is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which helps overcome uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.—Advertisement.

RUNAWAY PANIC IN SCOLLAY SQUARE

Scores of men and women were forced to flee by a runaway horse in Scollay square shortly after noon today. Women screamed as they fled into doorways to escape the frightened animal which kept to the side walk for several hundred feet until captured by Patrolman Marston of Station 2.

William Karp, owner and driver of the team, was pinned under a shaft of the wagon. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

The horse became wild at the foot of Pemberton hill, dashed across the square between the old and new subway entrances and collided with the curbstone in front of the Crawford House, the collision smashing the front wheels of the wagon. The horse broke loose from its harness and continued its race along the sidewalk to Hanover street.

250 MEN LAID OFF AT NAVY YARD

Mechanics, laborers and helpers, to the number of 250, have been laid off at Charlestown Navy Yard for probably not more than a few weeks.

There are about 1,500 men on the yard payrolls, with the new navy supply ship and the repairs on the battleship Georgia as the two biggest jobs.

The explanation of the layoff is that once in a while the yard gets "caught up" in its appropriation for construction work or the work itself reaches such a stage that there is nothing for certain classes of workmen to do.

From time to time a batch of men is laid off, to be called back to work later and take the places of other men. What influence is necessary to spread out over the entire force as the financial or working conditions demand.

At the Portsmouth Navy Yard 150 men have been laid off on an indefinite furlough, due to lack of ships to be repaired. General Manager Adams of the industrial department at the Portsmouth yard said he hoped to be able to recall the men to work when the cruiser Washington reached the yard from duty at Haiti.

SAYS PARLOR WHIST STARTS GAMBLERS

Beverly, Jan. 25.—"The parlor card table is frequently the kindergarten of the gambler's hell," said the Rev Andrew L. Bixler of the Avenue Methodist Church in his sermon Sunday night, and now Beverly is all worked up in a discussion of the subject.

"The gambling den is no more dangerous in its moral effect than the card party where prizes are offered," said the minister. "To put up a silver pitcher as a prize is no different from putting up a silver dollar between the gambler, the outand out gambler, and the woman whist player, there's no difference."

AMAZED HERE AT MEYER'S FIST FIGHT

Club circles in Boston hummed at the lunch hour today with the talk over the lively fist fight at Washington between George Von L. Meyer of this city and Hamilton, former Secretary of the Navy, and Truxton Beale, well known figure in Newport society and owner of a 110-acre farm in Kennebec county, Me.

All Boston, and in fact all New England, heard the news of the street fisticuffs with keen interest, as both principals are widely known in this section, particularly Von L. Meyer, Beale's sister is Mme. Bakmeteff, wife of the Russian ambassador, and a leader in the Newport society set.

The fight is said to have climaxed a controversy which dates back several years to an incident which occurred in the old Knickerbocker Club in New York. Since that occasion the two men are said to have mutually fostered a desire to "have it out."

Mr. Meyer went to Washington several days ago to address the National Security Congress on preparedness. He remained over to attend a luncheon at the Metropolitan Club yesterday in honor of E. Stanwood Menken, president of the Security League.

After the fisticuffs he took his place at one of the tables. Mr. Beale was not present at the luncheon.

Just before the luncheon began the two men were in the club house chatting with friends when their old animosity flared up.

SAY LIE WAS PASSED.

It is understood that one word led to another until the lie was passed and Mr. Beale challenged the ex-secretary to step outside and settle it. Mr. Meyer did so and the two were no sooner on the sidewalk than they were at each other with their fists.

Though both men are enthusiastic advocates of preparedness, the fight did not last long enough to prove which possessed the better theory to practice.

After the first swift exchange of the blows witnesses say the men closed in a clinch. Thus embraced they fell to the street, rolling over in the dirt.

At this juncture Captain T. M. Rolfs, who was a member of Mr. Meyer's staff when the latter was Secretary of the Navy, rushed in and separated them.

Both combatants then entered the clubhouse in a badly mussed condition. Mr. Meyer was slightly cut under one eye and Mr. Beale's forehead bruised.

Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician, who happened to be present, treated Mr. Meyer's eye.

The fracas caused a lot of excitement at the luncheon, but the ex-Secretary of the Navy calmly entered the table, and after his clothes had been dusted and his eye cared for. He remained until the end of the luncheon.

NEITHER WOULD COMMENT.

Neither would comment upon the affair.

Mr. Meyer's friends said on his behalf, however, that "he had been attacked." That was the only comment that was authorized.

Truxton Beale, though about fifty-five, has a much younger appearance. He is of an athletic build and a good-sized man. Mr. Meyer is fifty-eight years old, but is of slighter build.

Mr. Beale is a brother-in-law of John R. McLean, the publisher. He married Harriet Blaine, daughter of James G. Blaine, but they were divorced. He is a son of General George Beale, one of the famous California forty-niners.

General Beale was United States Minister to Persia and also to Greece, Roumania and Serbia at one time. Truxton Beale is a member of the Knickerbocker and University Clubs of New York.

Mr. Meyer, besides having been Secretary of the Navy under President Taft, was Postmaster-General under Roosevelt. He has also served as Ambassador to Italy and Russia. He is an overseer of Harvard University.

HARVEY HELPS BOOM FOR M'CALL

The McCall boom as a Republican Presidential candidate advanced several points today when it became known that Colonel George Harvey views the Bay State Executive as eligible material for a party choice.

Colonel Harvey is editor of the North American Review and has written books as a political forecaster.

He believes the choice of the Republican national convention this Summer will be Senator Elihu Root of New York or Governor McCall of Massachusetts, probably the nomination lands east of the Alleghenies.

In a statement following an address at a Commercial Club banquet held at the Algonquin Club, Colonel Harvey said:

"The Republican party will be a coward if it does not nominate for President the man universally recognized as the foremost statesman of the world; and, stupid though it has been in prosperity, the Republican party is wise and shrewd and far-seeing in adversity. That means as certain and irresistible logic, that the Republican candidates will be Root for President, Borah for Vice-President, and Roosevelt for Senator from New York.

"Against them as chief factors will be Mr. Wilson, for election, for a second term, Colonel House and Secretary Daniels. If the Republican nomination should come east of the Alleghenies and should not go to Mr. Root of course it will go to Governor McCall."

MAYOR ORDERS SHAW HEARING THURSDAY

Mayor Curley announced today that he would grant a hearing at the Mayor's office on Thursday morning at ten o'clock to William B. Scharton, attorney, on Scharton's petition for the removal of Penal Institutions Commissioner David B. Shaw.

The attorney has filed affidavits of nineteen prisoners at Deer Island, accusing Shaw of inhumanity and brutality toward them.

Reporters will be admitted to the hearing, but not the general public.

Commissioner Shaw, the Mayor says, denies the charges wholly.

After announcing the hearing the Mayor made this statement:

"I have conferred with Commissioner Shaw on the Scharton charges. Mr. Shaw tells me that there is not an atom of truth in them. But I have decided to grant a hearing."

The Mayor was not prepared today to tell what other Deer Island officials would be dropped. He has said that others would have to go as result of the Island disclosures.

The Mayor was offended because Mr. Scharton made public the charges and affidavits and petition before submitting the documents to the Mayor yesterday.

It was learned today that the City Council was preparing a report not only on Deer Island, but also on Charles Street Jail. The report will say that the Council found that the law was being violated at Charles Street Jail in that two prisoners were kept in one cell when other cells were empty. The report, it is understood, will contain severe criticism of Commissioner Shaw.

Attorney Scharton smiled today when told that the Mayor had decided to grant a hearing on his petition against Shaw. He said:

"Now just watch the fire works. There are conditions at Deer Island that no civilized community should stand for. The world has advanced too far to countenance penal rules that will permit a girl or woman, often more fit for a hospital cot, to be placed nude or scantily clad, with only a blanket to shield them from the east wind, in a dungeon, with not a ray of light and with only bread and water and a slice of bread a half inch thick every twenty-four hours."

DEER ISLAND ECONOMY.

"In that di way they were saving expenses down there, by actually starving prisoners in solitary confinement. The law says that no prisoner shall be kept in solitary more than three days, but I have witnesses who spent a week and two weeks and one girl spent most of seven months in solitary during her term of nine months.

"No human being, especially a woman, should be treated that way and the good people of Boston I am confident agree with me. Let us have the truth. Let's get it right away.

"I shall ask Mayor Curley's permission to summon principals and officials from Deer Island and for the privilege of cross-examining Commissioner Shaw and Master Hall. I am glad the Mayor has granted our petition as it is in line with the rules of justice and fair play to unfortunates."

Mr. Scharton has enlisted more witnesses. These are all former inmates of Deer Island. They are volunteering testimony since it became known that Scharton is active in the Islandexpose.

GETS MORE AFFIDAVITS.

The attorney now maintains he has evidence enough to show that Master Carlton L. Bratt, whose resignation was forced by the Mayor, did only the bidding of Commissioner Shaw and that the latter was really responsible for the Island's disciplinary system, now under fire.

Friends of Shaw today accused Scharton of trying to pay off debts. They said Shaw might institute legal proceedings against Scharton unless he took back what Shaw sympathizers declared that Scharton and other lawyers were angry because of a rule made by Shaw at Deer Island barring lawyers from visiting prisoners unless formal request was made by prisoners.

Attorney Scharton laughed at this and said that bigger men than Shaw name motives than that were behind the crusade, and that the evidence would prove it.

Attorney Scharton today added to the affidavits on file in the Mayor's office the sworn testimony of George E. Murphy of No. 246 Harrison avenue. Murphy's most striking assertion is that Commissioner Shaw shattered the discipline of Deer Island "by shooting cats at 2 in the morning."

It developed today that there has been friction of late between Shaw and Hall. This was shown on a recent visit to Deer Island by the City Council. Shaw remarked before the council, with some feeling:

"After the master gets through talking I may say a word."

This was taken as a bit of comment afterwards among the councillors.

The petition filed by Atty. Scharton follows:

SCHARTON'S PETITION.

Boston, Jan. 24, 1916.

Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston.

Dear sir:

Confirming our conversation at your office on Thursday, January 20, 1916, regarding the present Penal Institutions Commissioner, David B. Shaw, I am herewith submitting charges in writing as you requested by you, which I believe are of sufficient gravity to warrant his removal.

I charge the said Shaw with the following:

First—That he is incompetent, inasmuch as he is temperamentally unfit for the position he holds. One of the essential qualifications for this office is that the Commissioner shall have some slight conception of the duties necessary to its proper administration.

Where one assumes the attitude that every person confined to his care deserves treatment that finds its only comparison in the Hell-hole of the Dark Ages, and the Inquisition, with no regard for the primary principles of humanity, he is unfitted to have control of an institution where inmates are entrusted to his care.

Patience, kindness, toleration, corrective measures, are unheard of at Deer Island, but the policy seems to be persecution with a view to inflicting as much punishment as possible upon the unfortunates confined there rather than any attempt to reform and make them useful members of the community.

CHARGES ABUSE OF WOMEN.

Second—That Shaw has been guilty of the inhuman treatment of prisoners, especially women. This treatment has manifested itself under the form of assault and battery, star vation, refusal to furnish needed treatment, and solitary confinement.

Regarding the latter, I cite one instance of a prisoner serving a nine months' sentence, who practically served seven months in solitary.

Thirdly—He compelled women prisoners to be undressed in his presence, for the purpose of search, and carried on indecent and vulgar conversations with them.

I have in my possession affidavits of various witnesses who will support every charge I have made.

If you deem it advisable, you may grant a public hearing, and in that event I would request that you allow me to be counsel to present witnesses, summon others from the House of Correction, and to have opportunity to cross-examine Commissioner Shaw and his subordinates. Hoping, if they take the witness stand in their own behalf. Very truly yours,

WILLIAM B. SCHARTON.

GERMAN AIRMEN SHELL DUNKIRK AND NANCY

London, Jan. 25.—Dunkirk, in northern France, has been shelled by German airplanes, it was officially announced today by the admiralty.

Two enormous aeroplanes of the Fokker style were in the squadron that attacked the city.

The French base hospitals are at Dunkirk.

The attack was made shortly after dawn this morning.

The statement of the Admiralty says:

"Two aeroplanes bombarded Dunkirk today. The attack was made about 6 o'clock."

In addition to the military hospitals at Dunkirk, the French and English have used it since the early days of the war as a distributing point and concentration place for troops.

Dunkirk has frequently been attacked by German airmen and once it was shelled by the Germans, who used a gun with a twenty-two-mile range.

The city of Nancy, in France, has again been bombarded by long-range German guns and later a number of bombs were dropped from German aeroplanes. The damages from the bombardment were inconsiderable and only two persons were wounded, while the aeroplane attack is reported to have been without result.

GERMAN PLANE DESTROYED.

The destruction of a German aeroplane off the Belgian coast was announced today by the Admiralty. The plane was shot down into the North Sea, not far from Nieuport.

Nieuport is in the allies' line. It lies nine miles west of Ostende and about five miles northeast of Furnes in Belgium.

It is believed here that the German aeroplane shot down was either on its way to bombard English cities or else was one of the machines that took part in the raids Sunday and Monday.

The following official statement was issued by the admiralty:

"A German hydroaeroplane was shot down in the morning of the 24th by a British machine northeast of Nieuport, about 8 o'clock this morning."

The third German air raid on England, within forty-eight hours is officially announced today.

All London is in dread of further attacks.

The official British announcement says: "A German hydroaeroplane passed over Dover at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. The hostile machine was engaged by all the British anti-aircraft guns at Dover and was pursued by two British machines."

RAID ON DOVER THIRD TIME.

Berlin reports received in the United States show that this is the third air raid on the important channel port within forty-eight hours. Apparently news of the previous raids on Dover has been suppressed in London, the official announcements made Sunday night saying merely that bombs had been dropped on "the Kentish coast."

The raids came on the heels of the published stories that the Germans have perfected a new type of superaeroplane, the Fokker, surpassing any aircraft in the possession of the allies. The latest raids have aroused English fears that the Fokkers are to be directed against London. However the Germans seemed to be centering their attention on Dover, sixty miles away, and the scene of the greatest activity in connection with the transference of men and supplies to the Continent.

Dover, which is opposite the French town of Calais, at the narrowest point of the English channel, is one of the chief ports of communication between England and the continent. It has the finest harbor on the channel, and since the completion of the harbor works in 1909 it has been an important naval station. It has extensive docks and naval establishments and a large garrison. Since the beginning of the war it has been the scene of great transfer of men and supplies to the Continent.

"Two official statements regarding the German air raids on the English coast have been issued by the German admiralty. The first one said:

"HEAVY FIRES OBSERVED."

"A German naval aeroplane during the night of January 22-23 dropped bombs on the station, barracks and docks of Dover."

The second statement said: "Two German naval aeroplanes on January 22 dropped bombs on the aviators' sheds in Hourgton, west of Dover. Heavy fires were clearly observed."

H. J. Tennant, under-secretary of war, announced in the House of Commons that four British military aeroplanes and two seaplanes attended in pursuit of the German aviators who raided the east coast of Kent, but that the raiders were too far off to be overtaken.

Following is a list of German air raids on England, with resulting casualties, as officially announced:

SENATE COMMITTEE FOR FERRIS BILL

Washington, Jan. 25.—The Ferris water-power bill as amended here today was recommended for passage by the Senate Public Lands Committee. The bill already has passed the House. The amended bill recognizes States' rights in the control of water power development on public lands, so far as it relates to interstate business. The conservationists have urged a strong federal control, and it is thought they will fight the amended bill on this ground.

War Summary

A new German drive against that section of the allied line which runs north from the junction of the Oise and the Aisne to the sea, through France and Belgium, seems not improbable on the face of war reports today.

Near Neuville St. Vaast, on the Lens front, a tremendous artillery duel has developed. This was provoked by the Germans, and is believed in London to be an attempt to wipe out the allied entrenchments as preparation for an attack.

The artillery attack has spread north from Arras to the inundated areas of Belgium. A German drive here would have as its goal Calais, Dunkirk and the Channel.

Twenty thousand shells were fired by the Germans at one point, according to the French official account. This is more than a mere artillery duel would require.

Thus far the allies have easily checked every charge.

AUSTRIANS TAKE SCUTARI.

The Swidesh situation continues of first importance. The Riksdag has appointed a committee to confer with the King on foreign affairs and defense measures. The country's attitude is firm.

In actual results, the Austrian campaign against Montenegro was most important yesterday, for Scutari fell into Austrian hands and King Nicholas has fled to Italy. The campaign in this region has now assumed the aspect of a "cleaning up of loose ends" before a Teutonic concentration against Salonica.

Russia's two campaigns were stationary yesterday; floods halted activity in Mesopotamia; and the Austro-Italian front was as lacking in accomplishment as it has been since the beginning.

In the British Parliament, conscription has passed the Commons and gone to the Lords. The matter of an actual blockade of German ports is to be thrown open to debate in the Commons.

PREDICTS GREAT AIR RAID.

The Germans again attacked Dover from the air yesterday. This is the third raid in three days. No one of the three attacks was very serious, and in no one were more than a brace of aeroplanes involved. Today London reports that two Fokker planes shelled Dunkirk last night, without specifying damage. Reports thus far indicate that the Fokker plane is a more effective engine of war than the Zeppelin, and these raids are probably preliminary to a more powerful attck.

Thoms R. McMechen, President of the Aeronautical Society of America, has issued a statement predicting:

1—A monster Zeppelin raid on London within two or three weeks, for the purpose of trying out pneumatic guns with which the Zeppelins have been fitted.

2—The coming out of the German fleet, preceded by Zeppelins and Fokker planes, to attack the English. The German plan, McMechen says he is informed, is to launch projectiles from the air upon the fleet and to attack with recently perfected 17-inch naval guns of a new pattern.

McMechen says the new device for aiming and firing from the air craft is in the nature of pneumatic torpedo tubes.

NEWSBOYS HAVE ANNUAL BALL TONIGHT

The Mayor, with other State and city officials and representatives of the newspapers, has been invited to attend, and acceptances have been received.

In the grand march, which is to be led by President Charles Francis of the Boston Newsboys' Union and Mrs. Anna Frasca, the Mayor and the other guests will appear.

This is the fourteenth annual ball of the union. The Waverly Orchestra will render a concert, and there will be dancing from nine till two.

President Frasca will act as floor marshal, and Vice-presidents Samuel D. Saxe and Philip Bernstein will be assistant floor marshals. Daniel W. Mulkern is floor director, and Charles Brickel and Moses Levenson are his assistants. Moses Rublinovitch is chief of aids, and the reception committee is headed by Nathan Sokelson.

ROXBURY MAN IS HELD FOR SHOOTING

Frederick Vintor of Shawmut avenue was arraigned in Roxbury District Court today on a charge of assault with intent to kill on Harry Grantham of No. 87 Kendall street, Roxbury, and was held in $1,500 till January 28. The police charge the two had an altercation, and that upon Grantham's refusal to treat Vintor after him. Neither shot hit. The trouble occurred on Washington street, near Arnold, last night.

FAVORS NON-PARTISAN BOARD

Washington, Jan. 25.—The announcement was made at the White House this afternoon that President Wilson favors a non-partisan tariff commission. It was stated that a bill creating such a commission would be introduced in Congress soon. This announcement was generally taken to mean that a possible revision of the tariff is in sight. On this point the plans of the administration could not be learned.

SERBIAN WHO SET WAR GOING IS DEAD

Vienna, Jan. 25.—The Serbian anarchist Nedjelko Gabrinovic, who was sentenced to twenty years for complicity in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, has just died in prison. Gabrinovic threw a bomb which injured several persons in an automobile behind that in which the archduke was killed. The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, on June 28, 1914, precipitated the European war.

GOVERNMENT HEADS VIEW FRENCH ARMY

By International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 25.—President Poincare, Paul Deschanel, president of the Chamber of Deputies, and M. Dubost, president of the Senate, have just concluded a review of the French armies holding the eastern end of the battle line. They returned to Paris today. While in Alsace, the French officials visited a number of towns and villages held by the French troops and were everywhere warmly greeted by the populace.

WILSON GETS LAST WORD ON LUSITANIA

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Germany's final word in the Lusitania case today was laid before President Wilson for his approval. If it is given it will bring the eight months' controversy to a complete ending. It is confidently expected by officials that the President will consent to the passing of the case into history before he leaves for New York.

As told exclusively in International News Service dispatches yesterday, Count von Bernstorff received the final instructions from the Berlin Foreign Office, and immediately upon their being decoded placed them before Secretary of State Lansing. Today Secretary Lansing placed the matter before the President.

Germany sets forth in this latest move that the torpedoing of the Cunard liner was directed as an act of reprisal against Great Britain for what she considered the unjust and illegal blockade of German ports.

Now, the Berlin Foreign Office points out, Germany has changed her methods of reprisal at the behest of this government, expressed deepest sympathy and sorrow at the death of the hundred-odd Americans and stands ready to pay ample indemnities to the families of those lost.

It is also pointed out that the United States and Germany now are working toward a similar goal, namely, freedom of the seas, and such being the case, the Berlin government frankly expresses its desire to close up the matter once and for all.

British Inquiry on Persia Sinking

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 25.—Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, announced in the House of Commons today that a special government inquiry into the destruction of the Peninsular and Oriental liner Persia had been ordered.

The Persia was sunk in the Mediterranean Sea on December 29 last, with heavy loss of life, including some Americans.

The mystery of the loss of the ship has never been explained, both Germany and Austria vowing that their submarines are not responsible.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch on Monday stated that the British admiralty was preparing to issue a statement taking the responsibility for the destruction of the liner.

German Offensive Maintained in Artois.

By International News Service.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—The Germans are keeping up their offensive in Artois. The text of today's official report follows:

"West front—East of Neuville St. Vaast we captured three machine guns, and two hundred prisoners.

"Counter attacks of the enemy were repulsed.

"Hohen front—There is nothing to report."

645 BRITONS ARE HELD BY THE TURKS

London, Jan. 25.—Forty-seven British officers and 598 men are in the hands of the Turks it was announced today by H. J. Tennant, Under-Secretary of State for War, in reply to a question as to how many British prisoners the Turks held. Most of these prisoners were taken in the Dardanelles and the balance in Mesopotamia.

TEUTONS MAKE BIG DRIVE ON ALBANIA

By International News Service.

Berlin via Amsterdam, Jan. 25.—Practically all of Montenegro is now overrun by Austro-Hungarian troops and four separate invasions of Albania are under way.

Part of the archives of the Serbian government were captured by the Austro-Hungarian troops that occupied Scutari.

King Nicholas of Montenegro, who has gone to France, has abandoned the fight for his native land, but the Austrian War Office reports that there are strong armed bands which do not recognize the authority of the King and which are still keeping up a fight against the Austrians.

Military men predict that in a fortnight every inch of Albanian soil, as well as all of Montenegro and Serbia, will be in the hands of the German allies.

The conquest of the Balkans by the Teutonic and Bulgarian forces has been so successful that anxiety over the future policy of Rumania and Greece has been reduced to a minimum in Germany and Austria.

Antivari and Dulcigno are in Austrian hands, giving the Austro-Hungarian forces absolute control of all of Montenegro's territory on the Adriatic littoral.

"OKLAHOMA" A LIVELY DRAMA

By FRED J. McISAAC.

BANG! The lieutenant raised his revolver, and a shot rang out upon the still night air. The Indian chieftain hit the dust.

That's the way it used to be in the dime novels we all read at some time or other. Times change. In "Oklahoma," the new Belasco play, a shot rings out, but it is fired by the Indian chieftain, and the U. S. army lieutenant bites the dust to the complete satisfaction of the audience.

"Oklahoma" is a play about Indians and white men. It has all the old stuff, war paint, tom toms, Indian princess, U. S. officers, a house surrounded, etc., but strangely twisted about.

"Oklahoma" opened an engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre last night. It is in a prologue and three acts and the author is George Scarborough. David Belasco appeared after the curtain fell and responded for the author, who is absent. It is his intention to take the piece into New York in a couple of weeks.

It is a curious and absorbing play, a novel variation of an old theme, and its actors are Indians and white man living not so long ago in Oklahoma. The talent of Belasco is evident from first to last. Clever tricks, such as a dark stage with the actors silhouetted against a lighted doorway at the back, heightened several strong scenes.

But making every allowance for the attractions of the play the big feature at "Oklahoma" is the performance of Dawn, the daughter of the Indian chief Quannah, by Leonore Ulrich. Miss Ulrich played a Hawaiian girl in "The Bird of Paradise." I don't think she has done much else. Belasco has in her an exceedingly promising actress.

Her Indian princess is a sweet, gentle and simple daughter of nature, lovely, childlike and completely fascinating. Whether her drawling speech is faithful to Indian character I do not know, but it is very fetching.

The play revolves around Dawn, who has been deceived by a festive young lieutenant, and whose false step has been discovered by her tribe. Hardin, an Indian agent, a bore and bible character, marries her to protect her from her father's anger, and because he secretly loves her. How Dawn learns the difference between true love and false, and how the Comanches lay for and get the young lieutenant, is very ably told.

William Courtleigh plays Quannah, chief of the Comanches. He is a magnificent Indian of the type we all of us consider real, whether we know anything about Indians or not. Lowell Sherman as the brave and rascally lieutenant, does a particularly good job. The ladies cast does not show high praise, except perhaps John Mitten, in the important role of the Indian agent, whose diction is very poor, and who poses and struts like a small town stock actor.

We might wonder why Mr. Scarborough divides his play into a prologue and three acts when the action moves right along without pause from prologue to final curtain. The staging is very attractive and complete, as might be expected in a Belasco production.

Plays That Remain

WILBUR THEATRE—"It Pays to Advertise" entered last night upon its second week. The merry little farce comedy has taken the fancy of Boston, and a very large Monday audience was the result.

COPLEY THEATRE—"The Night Before," Harry Lauder's clever musical comedy, is entering its third and last week at the Copley Theatre. It is pleasing to those who are Scotch and those who are not.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"A Full House" began its final week at the Plymouth Theatre last evening. This merry farce that concerns the contretemps resulting in exchanged grips in a railroad accident has been delighting audiences for the past five weeks, and it is with sincere regret that it is forced to leave owing to previous bookings.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Last evening Montgomery and Stone entered upon the final week of their stay at the Colonial Theatre, and anyone who has not seen the delightful comedians in "Chin Chin," their latest laugh-getter, should make all speed to remedy his error of omission.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—"The Woman Hunter" began its third week at the Castle Square yesterday. Its success proves Mr. Craig's wisdom in venturing out of the beaten track of the stock company manager. For years the stock house reproduced old plays and was satisfied that was all the public expected of it. Mr. Craig, however, has proved that a stock manager may be a producing manager as well.

NEW ORPHEUM—The second week of the New Orpheum Theatre opened yesterday with a lively bill of vaudeville novelties, the headliners being Dan B. Ely's clever minstrel company in minstrelsy of an entirely modern sort. There are seven performers in the troupe, which has La Cheera, "the girl on her toes," as a feature in the "black and white revue." Frank Terry, an Englishman who has won a great reputation in this country, as well as his own, comes with a smart sketch of which he himself is the author. It is called "Mr. Booze," its title not half indicating the manifold activities demanded of himself by its author. His character acting alone lifts him above the usual run of vaudeville performers, and his dancing has made a strong hit with the public. Others on the bill are Julia Edwards, "The Versatile Girl," who does a little of everything at the piano; Joe Welch, Billy (Swede) Hall, who comes with Jennie Colburn and her company in a comedy sketch called "Bud Weiser," and the Kawana Brothers, who do a sensational Japanese equilibrists' act.

TREMONT TEMPLE—"Vanity Fair," a Kleine-Edison feature film of seven reels, which attracted much favorable attention upon its initial presentation two weeks ago, began a return engagement of a single week at Tremont Temple yesterday. The "star" part of "Becky Sharp" is taken by Mrs. Fiske, upon whose work it is unnecessary to dwell, as her strong impersonation of this unique character was the means of raising her to the foremost rank in her profession. Among the many vivid and thrilling scenes which are presented are those of the British troops at Waterloo and the great ball at Brussels before the battle.

SOTHERN IN A POLISHED COMEDY

THOSE who have never seen "David Garrick" played by any other actor do not, of course, know that it can be performed with any other shade of comedy than E. H. Sothern imparts to the role, but those who have seen the play in other hands wonder if Sothern does not give the part a bit too heavy a touch.

In any event, a crowded house, including a very fashionable gathering, saw Mr. Sothern begin last evening at the Shubert a week's revival of T. W. Robertson's very interesting comedy.

Mr. Sothern was in fine voice and spirits and his audience was enthusiastic. They honored him with numerous curtain calls and he, in turn, honored them with a little speech, in which he made known his gratitude for his splendid reception in Boston.

Mr. Sothern was, as usual, very interesting and, there being so few really polished comedians to entertain this generation, his performance was delightfully refreshing. Moreover, it is an agreeable sign when an audience of such size and including so many blase theatregoers as this one did, gives such close attention and such hearty expressions of pleasure to so simple and pure and wholesome a little comedy as is "David Garrick."

A company of extraordinary merit assisted Mr. Sothern. Chief among them is Miss Alexandra Carlisle, who plays the part of Miss Ada Ingot with rare charm and fascination. She and Mr. Sothern were obliged to divide the principal honors with Charles Verner, who was a remarkably entertaining Simon Ingot.

The other members of the excellent company are: Miss Katharine Brook, Mrs. Fanny Addison Pitt, Orlando Daly, Robert Lee Allen, Ezra C. Waick, Albert Howson, E. F. Nagle, Lowden Adams and A. Bornham.

Next week Mr. Sothern will play Alfred Sutro's "The Two Virtues."

PEOPLE'S THEATRE—Capacity audiences all day yesterday at the Fenway Theatre witnessed the film version of the great Henry W. Savage drama, "Madame X," in which Dorothy Donnelly is seen in the title role. Pictures have rarely been shown on the screen is even more effective in their emotional than else is on the stage. Surrounded by an excellent cast of players, all well known under the Savage banner, this famous actress gives more to the "Madame X" character than the role really calls for. Each and every one of the six episodes scintillate with the dramatic moments which make this great drama a theatrical by-word for nearly eight years. Other features on the big program give an unusually interesting aspect to the bill. The Fenway concert orchestra, with special soloists, are added attractions of real merit.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—"Under Fire" began its final fortnight at the Park Square Theatre last evening. This play of love, war, thrills and humor is duplicating the appeal it won in New York during its long engagement there, but it is also repeating its experience in being taken away when there is no sign of abating interest.

Coming Events

TREMONT TEMPLE—"Opera Night" is the next of the special evenings in the Tremont Temple Concert Course, and it comes Thursday evening, February 3. In addition to several well-known operatic singers, the management has the services of a chorus of 155 voices to perform several of the big operatic songs. Thus the Pilgrim's Chorus from "Tannhauser," the Soldiers' Chorus from "Faust," and the Pageant Scene from "Aida" will be rendered by as powerful a chorus as sings them in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. The chorus will be directed by John A. O'Shea, director of music in the Boston schools. The solo singers will be Miss Lillia Snelling, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Attilio di Crescenzo, the lyric tenor, who has sung principal roles in the biggest opera houses of Italy and South America; Nicholas Cuhkanoff, the bass, formerly with the Boston, Moscow and St. Petersburg operas. In addition to the several groups of songs these artists will sing airs from "Tosca," "Werther," "Gioconda," "Prince Igor," "Hamlet," "Rigoletto" and "Carmen."

THE REVIVAL of the Edwin Booth bill of "The Merchant of Venice" and "The Taming of the Shrew," which Edward Vroom will present tomorrow, Wednesday afternoon, at the Plymouth Theatre is of unique interest. The stage version of the double bill, edited by the lovable hand of William Winter and staged by Edwin Booth, was the most popular bill in his repertory. Sensation lovers of Shakespeare were inclined to frown down any cutting of the famous Bard of Avon when Edwin Booth first presented these two plays so edited that they could both be given on the same evening, but large audiences hailed with delight the condensed stories so skilfully staged by the full moulding of the first drama of "The Merchant of Venice" and the very best of the fun in "The Taming of the Shrew" were fairly and perhaps the more vividly presented. Mr. Vroom, who was a faithful member of Edwin Booth Company, will stage this double bill at the Plymouth with all of the famous Booth stage business.

EVERYTHING will be in readiness for reopening the Boston engagement of "Dodd Long Legs," with Henry Miller and Ruth Chatterton as the stars, at the Hollis Street Theatre on Monday, February 7. All the scenery and costumes connected with the production were entrusted in the fire that ended the engagement at the Tremont Theatre last Sunday, but by the quickest of manufacturers it was settled that the run could be resumed at the Hollis Street Theatre, beginning a week from Monday. Henry Miller took the midnight train for New York, following the disastrous fire at the Tremont, and yesterday he was in communication by long distance telephone with his representatives in this city. Klaw & Erlanger have placed their entire equipment at the disposal of Mr. Miller and workmen started at once in duplicating the effects for "Daddy Long Legs." The scenery and costumes as seen at the Tremont will be reproduced in every respect, so that the play will be given at the Hollis a week from Monday just as if nothing had happened.

AMERICANISM has characterized all the works of a musical nature seen at the Colonial Theatre this season, and there will come a decided change next Monday evening, when Henry W. Savage will make his first production there of "Tom Pom," his newest importation from abroad. The cast will be headed by Mizzi Hajos, who was seen at the Colonial last year in "Sari."

MISS JULIA ARTHUR comes to the Plymouth Theatre next Monday in the play which served for her reappearance on the stage after an absence of some years, "The Eternal Magdalene," a straightforward drama of present life, written by Robert H. McLoughlin, that has caused considerable discussion in New York, it having for its theme one of the oldest problems in history. The seats go on sale this morning, and judging from the advance demand for seats Boston will accord full honor to its own artiste. It is announced that Miss Arthur's engagement is limited.

MAJESTIC—This theatre was dark last night, but within doors rehearsals were going on for the opening tonight of "Buggies of Red Gravel," in which Ralph Hertz is appearing. This comedy was written by Harrison Rhodes upon Harry Leon Wilson's novel, which was one of the best sellers last season.

ST. JAMES—The pains and pangs of a morning after, under the title of "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp," a comedy by Charles Grapewin, formed the headline act at yesterdays performances in the St. James Theatre. Under the clever handling of H. B. Toomer and his company, the little play woke gales of laughter and storms of applause. The Cadets of Gascony, nine singers, were warmly received, their fine voices and well chosen program meeting with instant approval. So was the merry and tuneful sketch called "In the Song Shop," the offering of Kay, Hush and Robinson. The bill also had the "Casting Mellors," sensational acrobats, Bernard and Shaw, and a splendid film featuring Muriel Ostriche in "A Circus Romance."

GLOBE—Eddie Foyer, the favorite of vaudeville audiences, came back to the Globe Theatre yesterday at the head of the bill, with a new sketch that won instant favor from a big audience. The novelty of the bill was Marie Fenton, a songstress who spices her performance with a slow of some gorgeous new gowns, changing for each new song. Others in the long and interesting program were: Jack Birchley, in "A Bit of Flexibility"; Mannetti and Sidello, in a knockabout comedy sketch that proved screamingly funny, and Joe Morris' Serenaders. This program will be retained only through today's and tomorrow's performances; on Thursday there will be a complete change.

MRS. LANGTRY WELCOMED AT KEITH'S

MRS. LANGTRY, the celebrated English actress, received a warm welcome at Keith's last night as the Pilgrim's Chorus from "Tannhauser," the Soldiers' Chorus from "Faust," and the Pageant Scene from "Aida" will be rendered by as powerful a chorus as sings them in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. The chorus will be directed by John A. O'Shea, director of music in the Boston schools. The solo singers will be Miss Lillia Snelling, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Attilio di Crescenzo, the lyric tenor, who has sung principal roles in the biggest opera houses of Italy and South America; Nicholas Cuhkanoff, the bass, formerly with the Boston, Moscow and St. Petersburg operas. PARK THEATRE—The "Call of the Cumberland," the Paramount production, affords Dustin Farnum, the idol of the photoplay fans, an opportunity to score another success. Mr. Farnum appears as the star of the production in the role of Samson South, a leader of the clan of the South. Mr. Farnum carries one in sympathetic favor through the trials of the feudal activities to the pinnacle of success as an artist, and on to the true love which ends the thrilling story. The picture is set true to the life of the Kentucky mountaineers in those days. Revenge, sympathetic devotion and love, all these elements of life run through the photoplay. Following on the bill is one of the photoplays that make this week's program the best one ever shown at the Park Theatre. In it Clara Kimball Young and Wilton Lackaye play the chief roles of the most renewed play, "Trilby," in five acts, a Shubert production. Completing the program are the Selig-Tribune films of current events, mainly of Boston and New England, and a Sidney Drew comedy.

BOSTON THEATRE—Scratch the veneer of civilization and you bare the naked, savage soul of man. This is the theme of "The Misleading Lady," the story of primitive passions, of cave man methods introduced into modern society as shown in the motion picture version of the latest work of Charles Goddard and Paul Dickey at the Boston Theatre this week. In the film-play the leading roles are assumed by Henry B. Walthall and Edna Mayo. The story of the "Misleading Lady" portrays the girl who leads a man to bare his love for her before jesting friends. He kidnaps her, takes her to a mountain lodge and chains her to the floor. He dominates her, browbeats her. She hates him, but is awed by his overpowering mastery. His reckless daring, his brute force win her admiration. One day, goaded by his deliberate taunts, she feigns him with a blow. The woman instinct is aroused; the mothering love for the helpless comes to play. The man child is born to care for and a great love is born. In all "The Misleading Lady" is the realest blood drama of the modern-primitive ever produced. Agnes Ayres, in "The Love Trail," a super-feature, with other attractions and the Fadettes Orchestra complete a bright and enjoyable program.

WALDRON'S CASINO—The new Star and Garter Show at Waldron's Casino all this week is a big fun, beauty and novelty entertainment of the highest class in each of these particulars. It is full of long hprovoking ers in line, action and situation in the musical comedy "At Saratoga Springs" and in the burlesque, "A Night in the Harem," is notable for the loveliness of the women in the cast and the chorus and the attractiveness of their costuming and for the specialties in the olio, among which is Ethel Woodrow with her aeroplane, in which she flies over the heads of those in the audience; the elaborate and bewilderingly beautiful living picture entitled "The Deluge," in which all of the young women of the company are seen in one great sensational spectacle; "The Camel Dance," executed by Jess Weiss and Edith Ledar, encored several times; the high-class singing act of W. A. Wolf, minstrel basso, and Miss Margaret Lee, sweet soprano, and, Willie Colini and the Misses Williams and Bangor in a singing and dancing act. This great olio comes between the musical comedy and the burlesque, both of which are cast to the full strength of the big company and are splendidly produced in the way of stunning costumes and picturesque scenery.

News From the Home of the Coffee Bean

Mr. Frank G. Carpenter, noted correspondent, writing from Santos, Brazil, said to be the chief coffee port of the world—in an article in the Los Angeles Times of Oct. 30th, 1915, says:

> "The people here believe in coffee. They talk nothing else and as they talk they drink. They drink so much of this beverage that they grow sallow, and the muscles of their faces twitch continuously. When one of them sits in a chair, resting his toes on the floor, his knees bob up and down with nervousness, and the whole system seems afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance."

Very interesting!

And what, pray, is there in coffee that makes people sallow and nervous? The drug, caffeine—about 2½ grains to the average cup—a powerful irritant of the nerves and delicate tissues of the body.

Of course not everybody is affected so severely. But caffeine is a cumulative poison, and sooner or later it gets in its work with many users—slowly with some, faster with others.

Is it wise to tamper with such a menace to health? By far the better way is to leave coffee alone, and for a pleasant, delicious table beverage use

CARRIGAN IN TOWN AGAIN

Will Confer with Red Sox Head Tomorrow for a General Clean-up of Business

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

MANAGER BILL CARRIGAN of the World's Champions looked out upon the snow clad land in and about the immediate vicinity of his Lewiston home and decided that the time was ripe to take his big machine up to Boston. Mrs. Carrigan was willing to take the trip up over the rough and sloppy roads between the Maine city and the Hub of the Universe, trusting Bill at the wheel as J. J. Lannin trusts him with his World Beaters.

Mrs. Carrigan stepped out of the automobile none the worse for the trip and she and Bill have settled down for a two-weeks stay at Arlington Court. Bill is strong for the B. A. A. meet and will see those games before returning to Lewiston to fix up his affairs there prior to his departure for Hot Springs with his pitchers and catchers.

ALL IS QUIET IN ARLINGTON.

Out in the neck of the woods, where the Champs have their offices, there was nothing but quiet, confidence and comfort. Nothing appears to disturb Manager Bill, and as President J. J. Lannin is not expected back from New York until tomorrow, there was nothing to submit to the fans for approval.

They will get together tomorrow for a general cleanup of business, being assisted by Business Manager Tom Lannin. In the absence of Secretary Eddie Riley, who is confined to his home with a cold.

"I expect Heinie Wagner in here tomorrow," remarked Bill. "Heinie is probably coming on to talk with the Worcester club, although I don't know anything positive about it."

HAUGHTON SPEAKS TONIGHT.

Manager Bill will raise his chum and roommate of many seasons. He and Heinie were a team, hard to beat.

At Braves Field the office of the president was vacant. Mr. Haughton did not appear. He speaks at Harvard tonight.

ARLINGTON SEVEN KEEPS IN THE LEAD

There doesn't appear to be a chance of heading off the Arlington High hockey team. It thrashed Bridge Tech, 9 goals to 1, in their battle yesterday and now rule an almost impregnable lead. The annex the Interscholastic League title. Peabody, as usual, was Arlington's star. Morton, Jost and Barry affording him excellent support.

ENGLISH GOLFER IN HUB

Mrs. Gourlay Dunn-Webb a Visitor and Showing Feminine Players Tricks of Game.

AS clever as Boston women are at golf—and more national championships have been won by them than by women players from any other district in the country—they may profit from watching a feminine golf expert who is here from England.

She is Mrs. Gourlay Dunn-Webb, who has been golfing almost from the cradle. The family runs to golf.

Mrs. Webb is a niece of Willie Dunn. Her grandfathers also were golfers. Others played and taught golf. Her father, the late Thomas Dunn, was admittedly the foremost golf teacher of his day. Her mother was the first woman teacher in England. The daughter, who is in Boston now, giving exhibitions at Pinehurst, was second.

Mrs. Webb's mother taught the game in 1876 at the Royal Wimbledon Golf Club. In addition to being an able teacher, she was a splendid player. Mrs. Webb herself taught at Prince's Golf Club, located near London, and one of the leading women's golf organizations in England.

CAN DRIVE 250 YARDS.

The average woman will drive a golf ball about 100 yards. Mrs. Webb's proficiency at the game may be better understood when it is stated she can drive a ball 250 yards. In addition to her physical dexterity at the game, Mrs. Webb has studied details of costume in order to work out to her own satisfaction a golf garb she thinks is best adapted to the sport. Her knowledge of golf clothing adds a particular interest to Mrs. Webb's from a feminine standpoint.

In the British Isles most of the big golf courses are being used for war training grounds. What little golf is played through England now is being done mainly by the middle-aged and elderly men, who cannot be considered as fighting material. So the game as a great outdoor sport, is on the shelf, as far as England is concerned.

TO FLOOD AMERICAN MARKET.

The British manufacturers of golf balls, who have enormous stocks made up ahead, are expected to flood the American market with their output owing to the lack of the ordinary English of European markets.

The average American golfer uses home-made balls, paying 50 to 75 cents apiece for them. There is talk that the British manufacturers, in order to give their product a chance against the American ball in its home field, will be willing to get under American prices. Some of the higher-priced British balls may be knocked up to the old rates, but the chances are there will be a dozen or more makes selling at 50 cents.

An interesting calculation, made by a golfing expert, places the probable amount to be spent in this country on golf balls in 1916 at $2,300,000. This is figured on a basis of 600,000 golfers buying the average of ten balls at an average retail price of 55 cents.

Wood a Natural Player Excels at Many Things

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

THERE is method in the madness of baseball. The game is produced under divers conditions by school, college and professional players. It is never on an equal plane.

Just now there appears to be an uplift movement, but not so pronounced as to take the "pep" out of the national pastime. They tell the story of the "class" in coaching made evident at a game played between teams from two rival schools, where fashion sends its sons.

There was a boy on third, one out, and the team at bat needed that run. The crowd sat tense. After the vigorous cheering had faded away into a faint echo the boy coaching at third raised his shrill choice:

"Remember!" cried he. "Remember! Be conservative on a fly ball!"

JUST NATURAL FOR JOE.

Now that sounds flat, stale and unprofitable compared with the professional manner of coaching under similar circumstances. Take Hughey Jennings, for instance. Can you imagine "Ey-Yah!" pulling that high brow stuff? Still the boy with the shrill voice was perfectly natural and had fully as much red-blooded desire to win as has the Tyger leader. It is only a question of environment.

It is as natural for some men to play baseball as it is for them to breathe, and Joe Wood comes under that heading. Nor is baseball the only sport in which he shines.

Joe broke into the ranks of the Red Sox fresh from the Kansas plains, a tall, raw-boned, rangy youngster. All things in the big cities were new to him, but no one would have suspected it from his manner, any more than those who face him at the plate can solve his delivery.

He took to the "big stuff" as a young duck strikes out for the water. It was his game. He had much to learn, but it didn't take him long. When they put him to the big test he was there and the fans who crowded Fenway Park the afternoon he and Walter Johnson had that pitchers' duel carried away a wholesome respect for the young twirler.

EXPECTS A BIG SEASON.

He has been rather a hard-luck pitcher of late, but the outlook for next season is favorable. Should he "come back," and Bill Carrigan's job so far as choosing pitchers is concerned, will be an easy one. He will have about as good a staff as any club in the big leagues.

Some athletes excel in one particular branch, and have only moderate ability in other things. Joe is one who, if he was not the great twirler he has proven himself to be, would make his mark in several other lines of endeavor where nerve, coolness and skill are required.

There are a bunch of sharks who know that Joe can play billiards and pool in a manner that would cause many a professional to wonder. He can trot a fast heat to beat him.

The team is on the pool and Joe wanders into the billiard room and takes down a cue, the fellows pass the word along, for his work around the green table is worth watching.

AT HOME IN SADDLE.

Out at Hot Springs, Ark., when the war spirit is a-brew for practice, as it is some days when a "norther" sets in, the favorite form of amusement is to grab one of those sturdy, wiry horses and set out for a long ride through the gulches and up into the mountains. As the bunch clatters away from in front of the Eastman, down into Central avenue, you can pick Joe out at a glance. He is a mighty fine horseman. The only man on the team who approaches him in that direction is Tris Speaker. He and Joe can give a good exhibition of cowboy riding, picking up handkerchief stunts and the like with ease of men "born in the saddle."

They are not very strong for shooting in the Ozark Valley, but there are innumerable places, or galleries where rifle practice and difficult targets can be had. Here of a late afternoon Joe may be found giving the crowd of loungers a treat.

One day, some years ago, quite a crowd of the boys strolled down the avenue to the galleries. They had a little bet on and it was settled with the rifles at hand. In one of the places the targets gave out, so Joe looking around spied a stovepipe chimney, poking its nose skyward from a shanty just outside the gallery. He selected several guns and opened fire upon this thing. When he had finished there were but two pieces of tin holding the top of the pipe in place, and these were on either side. A slit-like hole had been shot across the pipe by the experienced hand of Wood.

A FARMER FOR PROFIT.

The owner of the shanty had to be reckoned with, but this shooting won Joe the respect of the marksmen of the settlement.

Joe is a farmer, these days, and has a rosy outlook when his pitching arm fails him. He can then travel to his home, where he will not have to "warm up" save by his fireside, fed from a huge woodpile, neatly stacked in his shed.

The uplift in baseball has brought back rolls to the players. These have been carefully invested for future demands. In this respect Joe is a good example to follows.

Joe's madness in baseball is to win, and this goes also for anything he attempts. Cold as ice in the pinches he delivers, being conservative on that "fly ball" when needs be, but possessing a fund of expression somewhat different from the boy at the third base coaching line, in the story.

St. John's Players Explain Their Position

A recent issue of the AMERICAN reported an investigation which the management of the Shawmut Five had started into alleged use of its name by another basketball team at Marlboro. Manager Kane of the Shawmuts informed the AMERICAN that the name of his team had been used by several members of the St. John's Literary Institute Five.

The St. John's players have replied to the charge and explained how they happened to be at Marlboro and how the announcement happened to be made that they were the Shawmuts. They say that Al Young of Marlboro recently came to Cambridge and asked them to go to Marlboro and play on Saturday night, January 15.

They agreed and presumed that they would be billed as independents in that town. They played under assumed names, but did not intend that it should be believed that they were the Shawmuts. As soon as they took the floor, however, they saw that those gathered believed them to be the Shawmuts.

"Just as soon," said Oxey O'Connor, "as we discovered that we were supposed to be the Shawmuts we went to Al Young and made objection. We insisted that we were not the Shawmuts. If anyone was at fault it was the Marlboro management and not us."

The St. Johns have always enjoyed a clean reputation and are indignant over the happenings. Captain O'Connor of the St. John's Five has explained his side of the matter to Manager Kane of the Shawmuts, and the latter is satisfied that the happening was not premeditated by the Cambridge players.

HARVARD CLUB IN SHAPE

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

THIS more hockey fans consider tomorrow night's game the more certain they are the Harvard Club will reverse the tables on B. A. A. Unquestionably the addition of Newt Foster adds considerably to both the offensive and defensive strength of the Crimson.

Bob Clifford's presence in the forward line gives a fast skater and fine stickhandler to an already well balanced outfit. Clifford, with Hicks, Phillips and Wanamaker, makes the Commonwealth avenue seven's forward line look considerably better than the B. A. A. outwards, judged on current form.

B. A. A. appears weak outside its defence. This is doubtless due to the many stiff games it has already played this season. Jones and Sadler were in anything but good condition Saturday night. Hutchinson, despite the two goals he shot, was hardly up to form, while Forrest Osgood was none too reliable.

In truth, the only real strength shown by the B. A. A. was exhibited by Skilton, Huntington and Donahue. Unbiased spectators at Saturday night's game with the St. Nicholas A. C. state that B. A. A. had many opportunities to win and would have won were it not for the weak playing of the four players mentioned.

Coach Winsor has rounded the Harvard Club team into first class shape and its chance to go over to-night seems good, especially if Goaltend Wigglesworth fills his position acceptably.

Supporters of the Harvard varsity seven feel certain that the team will annex the Intercollegiate championship. The recent successes of the Harvard players only serve to strengthen the belief of the writer, expressed several weeks ago, that Harvard will win out. Yale and Dartmouth are its chief competitors and it is hard to see just how either of them will prove very difficult to the Crimson.

Saturday night Harvard meets with a severe test when it tackles the McGill University team. The Montreal players are the leading exponents of the game among the Canadian colleges.

SWEENEY TO COACH B. C. BASEBALL NINE

"Bill" Sweeney, the Braves' second sacker prior to Johnny Evers' appearance upon the scene, has been appointed Boston College's baseball coach. It's the first time the Maroon and Gold has aimed so high, and "Policy Bill" should prove a winner for the institution. Sweeney will be surrounded with a very fair amount of talent and plans starting outdoor work at the earliest possible time. It is only a one-year document he has signed.

HALPIN GETS N. Y. BID.

Tom Halpin of the B. A. A. has been invited to compete in the special 600-yard run for the Harry Huermeyer trophy at the New York A. C. games, February 5.

Ernie Soucy Out for Crew Berth on Varsity

Ernest Soucy, the fleet football end, has passed up boxing at Harvard and is at present doing voluntary rowing work at the Newell Boat Club.

Soucy is to report as a candidate for the varsity crew next month and is out to do a "comeback" stunt. He rowed in the first eight in 1914, but last year quit crew work in May, as he was a member of the second crew and was not assured an opportunity for advancement by Captain Harry Murray.

Soucy's friends claim Murray discriminated against the Forest Hills boy, as he refused to quit football after he had been requested to do so. At any rate, Soucy's defection is not to be held against him by Manager Felton and Captain Morgan.

After All, Moran Will Scarcely Box Big Jess

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 25.—Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh heavyweight, today was offered $12,500 with 25 per cent. of the pictures, or $15,000 with 20 per cent. of the "movies," to fight Jess Willard ten rounds here.

The proffers came from Jack Curley, who has Willard's signature to a contract calling for a fight for the championship.

The Dorgan, manager of Moran, turned down both offers, claiming they were not liberal enough, though informed it was his last opportunity to get the match. Dorgan's refusal practically eliminates Moran from boxing the champion, it is generally thought, on Big Broadway.

AL REICH HAS HIS CHANCE

If He Whips Levinsky Tonight New York High-Rollers Plan Rushing Him Up Line.

TONIGHT'S fight at the Hippodrome means a lot to Al Reich, the New York heavyweight, a trim cut youth of twenty-five, who stands 6 feet 2 inches in height, weighs some 205 pounds, and gives every indication of being a good trainer and clean liver.

He goes against "Battling" Levinsky, the White Hope destroyer, clearly the best light-heavyweight in the game, in the customary twelve-round windup event on the Armory A. A. card.

Levinsky is a 4-5 favorite in the speculation, so the long shot must cash in order for Reich to gain the triumph which means so much to him.

There's a little coterie of shrewd New York sporting men trying to put Reich "over" in the heavyweight division. Maxey Blumenthal, one of the noisiest operators ever connected with the racing game, is included in the smart party. Maxey thinks so much of Reich he came over from gay Gotham town with Al Lippe, the big fellow's manager, yesterday.

Today Lippe and Blumenthal are to be joined by "Honest John" Kelly and George Smith, two other big leaguers in sportdom. With them, in all likelihood, will be "Tex" Rickard, the gamest fight promoter of them all.

REICH MAY CUT IN.

Hence, Al Reich stands a good chance of oozing in—being signed to meet Moran in an elimination match, anyhow, if not sent against Willard at the Garden in April or May.

It's to look him over in his all-important start with Jack Curley, who takes especial delight in going on with all the hopes and vanquishing those who are shy the necessary class, at the Tremont street playshop tonight, that Blumenthal is attracted to Boston, and the same purpose will bring other New York sport toplimers, including Rickard, most likely, over today.

Reich was a visitor at the AMERICAN office this morning. With him were Manager Lippe and Blumenthal. Al is a husky, all right, though not particularly "thick" in frame. Still, he's in trim at from 200 to 209 pounds; is still a mere broiler and his crowd claims he is the most promising heavyweight in the game.

Al was the national amateur champion for two years. He won his old title at Mechanics Building some three Winters ago when he knocked out Angus McEachern in the first round.

17 KAYOS FOR BIG AL.

Appearing in his first professional battle December 15, 1913, Reich has scored seventeen knockouts in twenty-five starts, and aside from being flopped by Carl Morris and Jim Coffey, was really shaded by a single foe—Dumbell Smith.

He has a stiffer punch than Tom Cowler, it is claimed. In citizens' clothes, Al looks not unlike Jim Corbett's protege, and the two size up as if they would pull a corking good match. But Lippe ayers Cowler absolutely refuses to be matched with Reich.

Tonight's prelims look all to the merry. Popular Johnny Wilson meets "Young Joe" Rivers, Gloucester's pride, in the semi-windup number, while the two six-rounders, Henry Hall vs. Joe Brown and "Cy" Goodwin vs. Young Clancy, should be productive of plenty of action.

FROTHINGHAM WINS A SPARKLING GAME

Channing Frothingham, Jr., qualified for the final round in the Harvard Club squash racquet tournament by defeating R. A. Fowers in a five-game match. Frothingham played a sparkling game in landing the victor, three sets to two.

PERCY D. HAUGHTON IS CHIEF TALKER

Famous Football Coach Expected to Tell Harvard Tonight His Plans for Future.

PERCY D. HAUGHTON, Harvard's football coach the past eight years and now chief proprietor and president of the Braves, is to be the leading speaker at tonight's mass meeting in the Union.

Harvard men the country over are watchfully awaiting the sign that Haughton, '99, is not to entirely pass up football—his first love—to woo his latest affinity—the baseball muse.

The result of tonight's gathering may be fraught with fate, and may go a long way towards making or breaking Harvard's future football history.

The printed invitations state that plans for the next football season will be outlined. This may mean that Haughton may depart from his Sphinx-like silence on the football question and make some definite statement of his future plans in reference to his continuing to head Crimson gridiron affairs.

If Haughton intends to step out, tonight would be the time to announce he had enjoyed deeply all the honors football can give, and he has had enough of the game.

Princeton is trembling along a Driggs and Yale a Leffere, both punting stars, and, as Haughton has always built his game largely around kicking, a reverse or two during next Fall's schedule might send him toppling from his present high estate and with one fell swoop whip away the fine reputation he has established at Harvard.

Haughton, with his system installed and running along smoothly, may thus see a chance to pass the burden over to some lieutenant, and, with occasional visits to Cambridge during the Autumn, watch football season, hope for the best.

Then there is always a chance that his successor, whomsoever he may be, may not make good, and then a general clamor would come from all corners of the land that the great chieftain be returned to his position, no matter what the cost may be to him or Harvard.

Undergraduate Harvard hopes Haughton will announce definitely tonight whether he is to retire or stay on the job. The Old Master has done a lot for present-day Harvard men, and, whatever step he may take, he will still be held in reverence.

"Reggie" Brown will be on hand tonight with his "movies" and will describe the "big" plays of the Harvard-Yale game of last November. Both ex-Captain Eddie Mahan and Captain-elect Joe Ullman are billed to speak, but it is very likely neither will be present because of "previous engagements."

BASEBALL MERGER NOT SETTLED YET

New York, Jan. 25.—It was announced today that the result of the hearings held by the committee appointed to decide on the New England League-Eastern Association baseball merger would be announced within a week. Secretary John H. Farrell, of the National Association, who is one of the committee, said that the merger was regarded as a big project and one which required mature deliberation.

The impression was gained from Farrell that the announcement would be made on Monday next. Associated with Farrell on the committee are Tim Murnane, president of the New England League, and Ed Barrow, the International League boss and O'Rourke, Eastern Association president, is here in opposition to the merger.

$10,000 BID FOR PACKEY.

Milwaukee, Jan. 25.—Tod Sloan, who has agreed to step to meet "Packey" McFarland at 147 pounds in this city in April, will get the chance, providing the Chicago Irishman accepts the $10,000 bid of the Crown City A. C. to go on with the British boxer.

Basketball Notes

As a result of an accident sustained while working, Dan O'Neill, the clever forward of the St. Alphonsus Association team, will be out of the game for a couple of weeks.

* * *

When Huskie Dolan returned to the St. A. A. lineup Saturday evening after an absence of three weeks, he had his old side partner Shoerin with him. The latter was substituting for Win Carlson, who was playing for Cohasset at Rockland.

* * *

The Howards of Charlestown will visit Roxbury this week. This team has been showing the way to other prep teams all season and will probably make Frank Hanron's team hustle.

* * *

HOLLAND, the Boston College High ace player, is showing unusual form this season. Playing practise games with the big fellows is helping him a lot.

* * *

JACK RYAN, a Roxbury youngster of twelve years, is credited with shooting twelve baskets in a recent game in Roxbury. He was playing against a much older player, but seemed to get the pill into the net with ease. He plays for the Mission Church Field Band team.

* * *

If will be interesting to watch how Win Carlson will show against the Shawmuts Wednesday evening. The latter team have one of the best centres in the game in Harvey and many believe that he will make the elongated Win hustle for honors.

"THE RABBITS' COLUMN" By Walter J. Maranville HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

When they dispose of "Home Run" Baker and Benny "Beket" Kauff, the magnates will have relieved a rather tedious Winter. We all know what the public thinks of Baker as a hitter and we also know what Kauff thinks of Kauff as a ballplayer. Very interesting and important, if true.

* * *

Still I think Boston fans, as well as those of New England, would like to see a little more action locally so far as the Braves are concerned. "There are plenty of ballplayers," I heard one magnate remark. Yes, I presume there are many, but what I'd like to see is a fine bunch headed for Boston to plug up the weak spots.

* * *

Hobe Baker may have had the grippe. He also had the grip on the pack and the public. He is rightly named when called the Ty Cobb of hockey. Hobe has a big draft at the box office. So also other players in the ice game can come even close to him as an attraction.

* * *

There must be something wrong with the Reds. No one has claimed the pennant for them. Perhaps Herzog isn't planning to remain, despite all the talk to the effect that he will manage. I am told that Boston was after him to play third and that this idea is still in the minds of those who control the club at present. Herzog at third would make an infield "for your life."

* * *

I was surprised to learn that the Boston club would even consider a proposition for Captain Johnny. It may, however, just prove to be a "come-on" to see how far Chicago would go to get the Keystone King.

* * *

With the World's Champions standing pat the season will be interesting in that respect alone.

President Britton of the Cardinals has joined the "no Federal League players for mine!" Club. It was rubbing it in some to offer him men who had previously played for St. Louis. Such is the situation when peace prevails.

Rather, Gotch has contracted to go touring with a circus, starting out the last week in April and showing for 200 days if business proves good. The arrangement is to have Gotch meet all comers from day to day, forfeiting "big" money whenever he fails to throw his opponent. It is said Gotch will receive $2,000 a day.

Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion, has signed to go out with the same show. The owners of the circus have given Willard permission to engage in two fights, one in New York and one in the South or West, but they must take place before April 15.

As for a Gotch-Stecher match, it will take place, it is announced, if Frank is the recipient of what he considers the "right" bid.

Athletic Bill on Hill Provides for 3 Rulers

IF House Bill No. 261, led by C. Monroe Mason, becomes a law, Massachusetts will have an Athletic Commission which will exercise jurisdiction over boxing, wrestling, bicycle, harness and running horse races. The bill has been received and been sent to the Committee on Legal Affairs for action by that body before it actually comes before the House and Senate.

Of the many such bills which have been filed, this seems the sanest, and there are many among the legislators who favor it. The bill calls for a three-headed commission, with one member appointed from Boston, one from Worcester or central Massachusetts and the third from Springfield or the Western part of the State.

The bill is intended to become effective thirty days after its enactment and the commissioners hold office for four years, dating from the first day of June after their appointment.

Should the law be enacted much will be done to lift all sorts of sport to a higher level. At the present time most of the sports over which the commission would exercise jurisdiction are decadent in Massachusetts. It is true that sparring exhibitions are held in different sections, but they are not held under conditions such as would prevail were there a commission with law to back it.

Massachusetts, once the centre of light harness racing activity, is today forced to be content with nothing but the half-mile tracks. Readville, regarded as the parlor track of the country, is threatened with being cut up into house lots. The game is slipping fast and unless some action is taken by the authorities of the State it will not be long ere the fast steppers of the light harness game will pass Massachusetts by entirely. Even the half-mile tracks will pass.

FEW RUNNING RACES.

As for running races, there is practically none of that in the State. On two days of each year Revere and some of those who aren't numbered among the 400 journey out to the Country Club in Brookline and witness a series of running horse races. A majority of the events, however, are over the steeplechase course and except for a few hundred feet and a minute or two in each event they cannot be seen.

If Massachusetts has a commission to regulate the sport much can be done to encourage it in each of its branches. Both harness and running horse races can be nursed along and made a profitable investment for anyone, as well as enjoyable to the great many persons in Massachusetts who appreciate the sport. If the bill becomes a law possibly Readville, now located within the city limits of Boston, will once more see the crowds of 18,000 to 20,000 cheering people as the sleek pacers and trotters flash by.

BIKE GAME WELL CONDUCTED.

Bicycle racing is the only sport which the bill calls for control over that is today conducted with any degree of success. The track at Revere is used during the Summer months and the racing there is of the best possible variety. It is indeed difficult for one to see just how a commission could improve on bicycle racing as at present conducted.

The bill provides that each of the commissioners shall receive a yearly salary of $3,000, in addition to their necessary expenses. They may appoint a secretary whose salary shall be the same as theirs. They must make an annual report of their doings to the Legislature each December.

If the bill became a law twenty-round boxing matches would be allowed with eight-ounce gloves. The amateur events must be held under rules of the A. A. U., the harness horse races under American Horse Breeders' Association regulations and the bicycle races under the rules of the National Cycle Association.

TO BANISH GUILTY PERSONS.

The bill calls for the payment of a 5 per cent. tax from the receipts of any event held under a license issued by the commission. Each club receiving a license to conduct any kind of an event provided under the act must deposit with the State auditor a $5,000 bond before the license is granted.

A fake boxing, sparring or wrestling match calls for a six months' suspension of the guilty persons for first offence, and for a second offence total disqualification. A violation of any of the other provisions of the act will be regarded as a misdemeanor.

LAST NIGHT IN RING

New Bedford, Jan. 25.—Terry Brooks of Boston had a shade on Joe Malone of New York all the way in their 15-round bout. Malone worked cleverly but Brooks was too rugged for him.

Pittsfield, Jan. 25.—Dan McDonald of Roxbury was outpointed in a 10-round slugging match by Johnny Howard of Raymond, N. J., at the Twentieth Century A. C. and quit the ring with his face badly battered. Howard had the better of the exchanges in all but the fourth and a part of the sixth. Billy Miller of Providence was disqualified in the second round in his scrap with "Kid" Allen of Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

CHAMPIONSHIP IS BEING CONTESTED

The professional fourball match for the indoor golf championship of Massachusetts, in which Mike Brady of Oakley and Geoge Bowden of Tedesco are pitted against Tom Kerrigan of Dedham and Jack Blair of Commonwealth, got under way today at Plimpton. If necessary two more matches will be played to decide the title.

Eighteen holes will be played in each match, the second of which is scheduled for tomorrow at the B. A. Brady and Bowden are in charge of the indoor course at the Exeter Street Club. Should the third match be necessary it will be played at Commonwealth Thursday afternoon.

The men are competing for a purse of $50 in gold, and it is said that a considerable feeling has been engendered there is considerable money be on the outcome. The golf school is crowded for the event this afternoon.

NEWARK CLUB SUED BY CHAS. H. EBBETS

By International News Service

New York, Jan. 25.—Claiming the money is due for loans, Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn club, announced today that suit for $74,000 will be brought against the holders of the franchise of the Newark (International League) club and also against the International League. According to Mr. Ebbets the $74,000 was advanced to the Newark club by the Brooklyn club to keep it on its feet after its sale. President Barrows of the International League contends that the obligations ended when the franchise was forfeited.

RICHIE MITCHELL DRAWS WITH RIVERS

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 25.—Before one of the largest crowds that ever attended a boxing match in this city, Joe Rivers of Los Angeles and Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee went ten desperate rounds to a draw, last night.

Rivers forced the milling from the start, and, working continually at close quarters, soon showed that in infighting he was completely Mitchell's master. Mitchell came to life in the fourth round, and, using his lightning left jab, soon began to make the bout more of an even proposition. Both boys finished strong.

The Emerald and Why It Is Green

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A CORRESPONDENT asks where emeralds originally came from; whether they are next to hardness to the diamond, and which are the most valuable.

The ancients obtained their emeralds mainly from Upper Egypt, along the Western borders of the Red Sea. But since the discovery of America the principal source of fine emeralds has been at Muso, near Bogota, in the Republic of Colombia, where a mine has been worked for the last three centuries.

Emeralds do not rank next to the diamond in hardness, that place of honor being taken by sapphires. They may dispute the third place with topaz, but they are more certainly ranked fourth, coming between quartz and topaz. It is usual to reckon the hardness of minerals on a scale of 10. The diamond stands at the top, with 10 points; the sapphire is credited with 9 points, the topaz with 8, the emerald with 7½ to 8, and quartz with 7.

The characteristic color of emeralds is brilliant, vivid green. The shades vary somewhat, but only an expert can select among them. The emerald is a variety of the mineral called beryl, whose transparent specimens are also valued as gems. It is a silicate of aluminum combined with the rare element glucinum beryllium.

The colors of beryls are green, blue, yellow, white and reddish. The peculiar rich green of the emerald is due to the presence of a small amount of oxide of chromium. Emeralds, on account of the rarity of the best specimens, are often sold at prices as high as those of diamonds of equal or even greater size.

There is a bluish green variety of the beryl known as aquamarine, a gem of much less value than the emerald, which is found in many places, including Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina and Colorado, in this country. Opaque crystals of beryl occasionally attain an enormous size. There is a specimen found at Grafton, N. H., which weighs 2,900 pounds, and others weighing a ton or more are known. Of course these masses, although composed of the mineral beryl, have no value as gems. Other semi-transparent crystals of beryl attain several pounds in weight.

It is an interesting fact that all the most precious stones, except the diamond, are compounds of the common element aluminum. The diamond stands by itself in not being a compound, but a pure element (carbon), in the form of a transparent crystal. The hardest of all known things, it is also the most brilliant, depending for its beauty not upon accidental colors derived from extraneous sources and chemical blending, but solely upon its own marvelous power of splitting up and dispersing the light waves, and displaying their gorgeous spectral colors. It is a natural spectroscope.

The great aluminum gems, on the other hand, owe their beauty mainly to inherent colors as fine as each of them is monochromatic. The curious fact just referred to, viz.: that, except the diamond, all the finest jewel stones are based upon aluminum, comes out clearly in the following list:

Diamond—Pure crystallized carbon.

Emeralds and beryls—Silicate of aluminum and glucinum.

Topaz—Complicated silicate of aluminum.

Garnet—Silicate of aluminum.

Turquoise—Phosphate of aluminum.

All of these gems, with the single exception named, owe their colors to impurities, and not one of them is an unmixed element except the diamond.

Yet the splendor of the single color exhibited by a fine emerald, sapphire, topaz or ruby is often so effective that the market price of any of these stones may, in particular cases, exceed that of diamonds. These softer stones also lend themselves to the gem-cutter's art. Emerald has sometimes been cut into various forms. None is said to have had an emerald lens when he were in a ring. There is at Florence, Italy, a miniature portrait of Lodovico Storza carved out of a ruby.

Something Lost

As a concert a man was greatly annoyed by a young fop in front of him who kept talking all the time at his side. "What a nuisance!" he exclaimed, at length. "Do you refer to me, sir?" demanded the fop, indignantly. "No, not I meant the musicians. They keep up such a noise with their instruments that I cannot hear half your brilliant conversation."

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy. —Advertisement.

The Winter Stream Dreams Under the Ice

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service

"But all lost things are in the angels' keeping, Love;

No past is dead for us, but only sleeping, Love."

YOU' are a tiny, grey mouse that may slip through the crack of light that lies like a yellow sword on the threshold under the door. The queer man who bachelors there year in and year out in a kind of cheerful loneliness sits at his big, shining table under the warm circle of his lamp. The people who know him and smile at his crabbed smile know that he adds his bills there and reads old Ben Jonson and the war news and certain books of limericks that sing of the "Coast of Coromandel Where the Early Pumpkins Blow," there; and wraps up his Christmas packages with Santa Clauses stuck on the corners there; that he reads and pens his business letters there. But who but the grey mouse knows that he brings out sometimes a faded old plush album and, unfolding its yellowing leaves with gentle fingers, opens his heart wide there on the dark old table top?

Who knows that the ghosts come there? Lovely ghosts from the Springtide of the wintry old man's life? But you, the grey mouse with tiny, black, bright eyes know that the Winter stream dreams under the ice! Out of the pages of the old book as he turns look quaint faces above old clothes of a long-gone time.

A sedate boy with a sweet mouth and an old man's tie and his dark hair brushed away from his face like a girl's. A pale, pretty woman with shiny hair and buttons and a haunting something speaking in her face in the language of kinship to the live old one bending above hers. And—then a face! A mocking, lovely, girl face, all ringlets and flowers and drooping shoulders, with the page that holds her, worn with fingering. Her shining tintype looks up around the broken fan that was hers. The old man fingers the silken cord that holds its ring. A packet of brownish letters with careful shaded writing growing dim across the face of them reflects their faded blue binding ribbons in the pool of the table. And you silent, grey mouse in a warm corner, ponder on the silent and smiling white memory that turns the pages for him thereafter; also you ponder on the glitter that lies on the meagre check of the warmly smiling old man.

How I Discovered Myself

The Successful Woman Series

By LOUISE ODENCRANTZ,
Superintendent of the N. Y. State Employment Agency.

I HAVE really been so interested in other women that I haven't had time to think about myself. So many of us don't think at all of the fact that we are are doing things in the world. We just go ahead and do what seems to be required, and never stop to think what would happen or who else would be in our places if things hadn't just happened the way they did.

I strongly believe in vocational guidance. I trained for a teacher of Latin, but surely nothing could be more different than the work I am doing now. Of course, I believe that it was meant to be that way. Even though I began my work in the employment bureau without much of an idea of what I was about to undertake, I know now that it meant the foundation of my life work.

There is one thing above all others that has carried me through many a dark and gloomy place, and that is my sense of humor. Here at my desk I listen, day in and day out, to the troubles and cares of other women.

People have asked me time and time again if these things do not sadden me. They might if I allowed them to obtain a firm grip on my emotions, but I remember that I have a sense of humor and every chance I have to develop it I take, and now I can generally apply it in nearly every case to some extent, and it means a great deal.

I believe that most women have an undeveloped sense of humor. Most of us drift along and try not to be too critical of the failings of others, but it becomes an endurable thing if we apply humor to situations. If I have a particularly trying day I forget it when I go home and think of frivolous things to make me laugh.

I have really applied humor to cases that looked blackest and found some responsive glimmer of hope somewhere hidden that might not have come to light at all otherwise.

Humor is a big element. It spells renewed vigor. I know a motto that some one quoted to me once and that I always try to remember if I feel an attack of the blues coming on. It is, "If you laugh about a trouble, it's a bubble blown away." Isn't that a splendid inspiration, and a true one?

I wish that more women would try to use the humor in their different troubles. Humor in life is so scarce, and it ought to be the most sought after gift of all. It means that one can never fall to see the bright side of things. It spells hope and renewed faith. It is a source of never failing argument that always inspires optimism. Of all specialized fields I think a humorist is the one specially chosen or should be, at any rate. I believe in dispensing humor also, with the more material things, and the returns will always be far larger than we had dared to expect.

That Boy Again!

In a class of twenty boys, nineteen are probably afraid of the examiner; but the betting is that the examiner himself is terrified of the twentieth. Certainly this was the case of the poor old gentleman who had to examine the class of which little Sammy was the twentieth—and last—member.

"Now, my lad," quoth he, "what lessons do you like best?"

This was too silly. Sammy merely sniffed, thereby expressing his unbounded contempt.

"Do you like mathematics, now?"

"I 'ates 'em."

"Well, we won't waste much time on that subject then. Tell me how many sides has a circle got?"

"Two! The inside and outside."

(Suppressed cheers.)

"H'm! We will pass on to moral philosophy. Do you know anything about cause and effect?"

"Fur!"

"Ah, that's better! Now, does an effect ever go before a cause?"

"Yus!"

"Oh, indeed! Just give me an example, will you?"

"Yus! A man pushin' a wheelbarrow!"

(More cheers—not suppressed.)

Anecdotes of the Famous

WHEN in America Hall Caine was besieged by autograph hunters, but he refused them all. One day a porter at his hotel brought him a registered letter. He was asked to sign a receipt and was then informed that he must sign a second paper which had to be returned to the sender of the letter. Quite unused to American ways, he did so, and when he had retired, he found that it contained nothing but a note of thanks for the autograph which he had, of course, appended to the paper.

When in New Zealand Lord Kitchener was taken to see a remarkable cave by a pretty Maori girl, who acted as his guide. She informed him that if a Maori wanted to insult any one he called him by some name of some kind of food. Once a certain Maori chief told another that he was roast veal, then, fearing vengeance, fled to this particular cave, where, however, he was followed and killed by his grossly-insulted enemy. Lord Kitchener listened to the story with great interest.

"Ah," he exclaimed, stroking his mustache, with one of his rare smiles, "then I suppose it would be highly dangerous to call a Maori lady a little duck?"

While driving his motor car in Rome one day, and turning the corner at a rapid pace, the present King of Italy collided with another motor car coming in the opposite direction. He pulled up to apologize, and was greeted with a storm of indignation, the owner of the other car, who was an American, dressing him down in fine style, and winding up:

"Scorchers like you should be strung up!"

"Don't care where," roared the foreigner, "so long as it is done properly!"

A few days later the latter, who was a distinguished member of American society, was present at an audience at the Quirinal. The doors were thrown open, and, to his amazement, the American found himself face to face with the motorist he had so lavishly abused a few days earlier. The tension was painful until the King, smiling, advanced with outstretched hand, saying:

"Are all Americans as peppery as you?"

Ex-President Roosevelt relates the following amusing hunting story:

"A fellow named Smith," he said "had a narrow escape from being killed by a lion in Nairobi.

"When the lion closed its jaws on you," asked a friend in awestruck tones, 'did you give yourself up for lost?'

"'Oh, no,' answered Smith calmly, 'You see, when I'm home I sleep in a folding bed!'"

In Our Very Wonderful World

THE caterpillar knows that there is safety in numbers, and whole companies may be found feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies; but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares to move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he does not venture to leave his old coat lying around. The moment that he takes it off he eats it. The caterpillars that live in companies shed their skin boldly. Only the poor solitary ones feel forced to swallow their old clothes.

It was discovered some years ago that the leaves of the fern plant, which grows almost everywhere, are excellent preservatives for packing food, fruit, and even meat. In the Isle of Man fresh herrings are packed in ferns and arrive on the market in as fresh a condition as when they were shipped. A number of experiments have demonstrated that potatoes packed in ferns keep many months longer than those packed in straw. In fact, potatoes packed in fern leaves are as fresh in the Springtime as when they were first dug.

Girls and women have taken up work on the farms in several places in Australia, in order to help to bring as great an area as possible under crop. Some have accomplished a tremendous amount of work, but perhaps the most remarkable record is held by a child living in the south of the Pinnarro district, in South Australia. This season she has cultivated 300 acres and drilled 200. She spent her tenth birthday while drilling. She glories in her work, and is never happier than when among the horses. She always yoked her own team.

At a recent meeting of one of the New Zealand acclimation societies the curator of a game farm reported that he had included eels in the list of vermin which caused the death of young pheasants. He gave his assurance that no fewer than seventeen young birds had been lost owing to eels seizing their heads while they were in the act of drinking creek water. The deaths of innumerable young ducks had been caused by eels, and it was a common thing to see scores of ducks minus a leg, which had been dragged off by these voracious fish.

Daily Cooking Suggestion

BREAD PUDDING

This is not a soft mushy pudding and should turn out like a cake, to be eaten hot or cold.

Save your dry bread; soak it in cold water, 1 pint. Then add: A little flour, sugar to taste, allspice, or any other handy spice, currants, half cup, raisins, half cup, candied peel, cut fine, quarter-pound of suet, chopped, one egg if you want, or a little milk. The mixture will be fairly moist. Put into a moderate oven, in a well-greased tin. This is my special for visitors, even those who do not like the usual bread pudding, and I never have to waste any bread.

BLACK BOX FOR GOVERNOR; NO BOMB

A busy young man, wearing the brown overalls uniform, with the blue cap and highly-polished badge of an express messenger, walked hurriedly into Governor Bickle's office at the State House this morning carrying a small, black metal box, fastened with an improvised steel clasp and tightly bound with black straps.

He placed the mysterious looking box gingerly down upon the floor.

"A package for the Governor of the Commonwealth," he said, and he left the room as quickly as he had entered.

Detective "Eddie" Murtagh, the Governor's body-guard, thought the messenger looked a shade of relief as he hurried out.

The messenger turned at the door and said: "It's time to unscrew Mr. Walsh, but he refused to open it. Then he hurried away.

Murtagh approached the black box carefully. One of the brawn, wax-sealed partitions was loose. Murtagh looked like "Governor Craig of North Carolina."

"You suppose it's another bomb?" said Murtagh.

"It certainly looks strange," said William Reed, the Governor's messenger, with an air of mystery.

"Guess we'll let the Governor of Connecticut," said Governor's Assistant Secretary Henry Long.

Eventually the detective thought it was a matter for the State police.

Murtagh carried the mysterious black box with care and walked cautiously with it down to the office of Lieut. Colonel Eben F. Stone, State police.

"I suppose it's up to us again," said Neal with a sigh.

They opened it, silently.

Nothing in it but oil.

All the Governors in the country are to sign the albumen. Its first lady to sign is Nothing to see on one of the white stars.

Detective Murtagh, why Governor Walsh didn't open it," they said, as they tied up the box again with a sigh of relief.

LIGGETT TALKS LEGISLATION TO PRINTERS

President Louis K. Liggett of the Boston Chamber of Commerce advised the master printers and others at the annual conference of New England printers at the Somerset today to watch all legislation affecting business interests in New England and especially in Massachusetts.

He gave warning that prospective old-age pension and taxation bill may mean a 50 per cent. increase in the State tax.

He prophesied the time when Chambers of Commerce would be recognized as municipal bodies, as they are in many German cities, which employ them by law.

President John J. Martin of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange drew applause when he said we must have an American merchant marine.

Over four hundred printers from all over New England attended. President A. W. Finlay of the conference presided. The chief speaker, in addition to Mr. Liggett and Mr. Martin, included former Speaker John N. Cole of Andover, who is a newspaper publisher.

BIG TAX INCREASE.

"The coming year there will be two bills under consideration in the Massachusetts Legislature, each of which is of the most radical and far-reaching character. One is the bill providing for the most drastic change in our system of taxation. As these bills are now foreshadowed they will, if passed into law, increase the State tax of Massachusetts daily fifty per cent. Business men should bear in mind that our State tax has increased 400 per cent. in eleven years.

"Speaking of the duty of business men in organizations, President Liggett said that while the Boston Chamber of Commerce, with its 40,000 members, was today one of the most powerful bodies of the kind in the country, there must come a time when that and similar bodies should be consulted in matters of organizations, as they are in most of the large German cities. That time, he predicted, he said, regards the work of the Chamber of Commerce as of such value as to be officially recognized municipal and social interests of the community and empire that, in the matter of taxation, just as our school system is supported by taxation.

FOR MERCANTILE MARINE.

President Martin of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange said that the great trouble with business men today in the printing trade as in every other business is that they have paid to little attention to proper and efficient methods of estimating costs of production. "Practical illustrations, as they are in most of the large German cities, should be given attention

Four Things Worth While

The Fourth, FAITH, Is the Foundation on Which the Others Rest.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

FOUR things puzzled and interested the ancient inspired writer—a man with a maid, a serpent on a rock, a ship in the midst of the sea, and an eagle in the air. This is the text, one of the quaintest and most interesting:

"There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea, four which I know not:

"The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea, and the way of a man with a maid."

The Proverbs, xxx:18, 19.

In this generation our interests are different. The ship, the serpent, the eagle no longer puzzle us. We have wisely given up the useless effort to understand "the way of a man with a maid." The four important things today are

Time,
Knowledge,
Useful Work,
FAITH

TIME is man's only real possession. He lives in time, depends upon it, is bounded and limited by it. The years, hours and minutes are all that he has. He passes as they pass—neglect time and you neglect all, waste time and you waste yourself.

KNOWLEDGE is the only real wealth that time can give us. Everything else is unimportant. A man who lives on, ignorant, knowing as little today as he did yesterday, is absolutely wasting his life. No matter how hard he may work, he is letting the time go without making himself better than he was before.

USEFUL WORK is the product of time and knowledge combined. Useful work of the highest kind is, first, adding to the knowledge already possessed by human beings. Second, work useful to the human race as a whole.

When Franklin brought the lightning down his kite string, and at the same time brought the castle of superstition tumbling upon the heads of witch-hunters and believers in devils, that was great work for humanity.

When Bell invented the telephone, bringing people together; when Edison invented his incandescent lamp; Stephenson the steam locomotive; Marconi the wireless telegraphy—each was a useful worker in the highest sense.

Work that is only useful to you, or your own family, or your next-door neighbor, while eminently respectable, is not work of the highest kind.

And making money, except the making of enough to free you from the slavery of poverty, is not useful work at all.

Careful use of time, our only possession; earnest seeking for knowledge, the only real wealth; constant effort to produce useful work—those are the things that make life worth while.

And they all rest upon FAITH.

Faith is the bridge that has carried the human race safe across the dreadful chasm, the centuries of brutality, superstition and cruelty.

Faith is the force that will take the human race through the horrible ordeal of blood and murder that disgraces Europe and civilization.

Faith is the inspiration that will enable human beings to take up the threads of life and of work when the war shall end, and build a new and better civilization.

Faith that believes what it cannot see; faith that knows that justice will rule in the end; FAITH is the foundation upon which rests all intellectual effort and all human hope.

Faith is that power in the spirit of man which enables him to endure everything because he believes and knows that better things and better days are coming.

All faith has helped humanity through the various phases of its intellectual childhood—even the faith of the black savage in his painted idol, of the red savage in his totem, of the white savage in his various childish beliefs.

The greatest faith is the faith of man in humanity, IN THE POWER OF MAN TO SOLVE HIS OWN PROBLEMS AND TO WORK OUT HIS EARTHLY SALVATION FOR HIMSELF.

"The heavens are the heavens of the Lord, the earth He has given to the sons of men."

There is a saying to inspire useful workers.

This earth is OURS. We can solve every problem of the present and future, as we have solved the problems of the past.

Poverty and disease will yield to time, knowledge, work and faith, as other evils have yielded in the forgotten centuries.

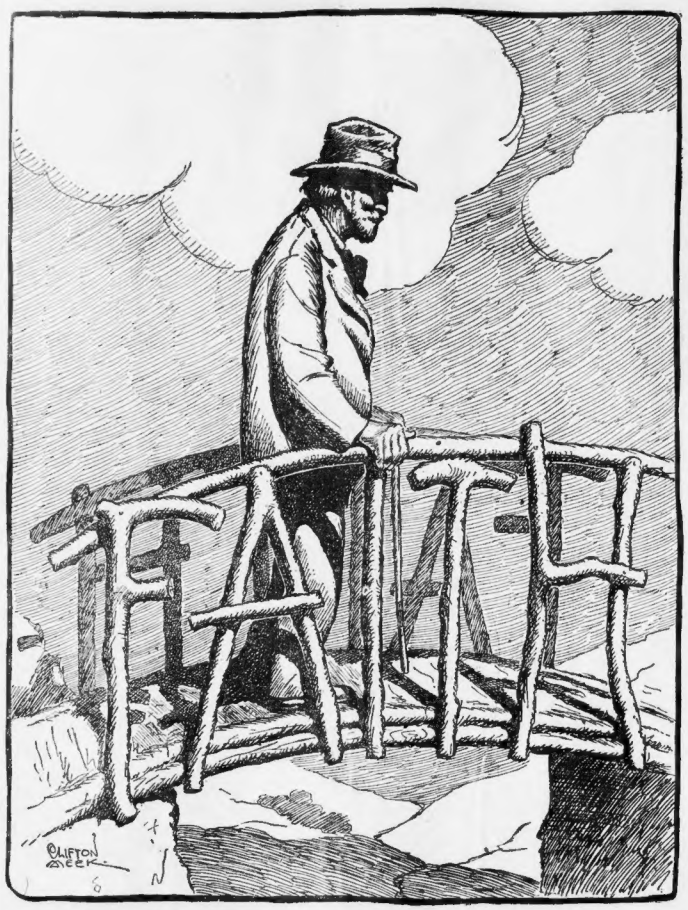
This is our earth, MAN'S possession. With time, knowledge, work and faith we can make a Paradise of this beautiful planet and earn the right after millions of centuries spent here to move on to a higher, nobler abode, a greater planet, or to great stars in the cosmic "mansion."

"In my Father's house there are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."—St. John, xiv:2.

This earth is our mansion now. Here we human beings have struggled for two or three hundred thousand years, as man-shaped creatures, and struggled for tens of millions of years in lower forms of life. And here we shall stay, in this earth, as the life stays in our body, as long as the earth shall live, then die with it and move on.

The important thing for each individual is to keep FAITH in himself and his race, value and use his time, increase his knowledge, work usefully and prove himself grateful to those that worked here before him, useful to those that are to come after.

THE GREATEST BRIDGE IN THE WORLD---FAITH



It has carried the human race across the chasm of centuries.—(See Editorial).

More Truth Than Poetry

Song for a Secretary

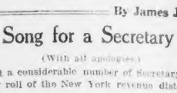
(With all apologies.)

Investigation has disclosed that a considerable number of Secretary McAdoo's nephews, nieces, cousins and other connections are on the pay roll of the New York revenue district, which is under Mr. McAdoo's department.

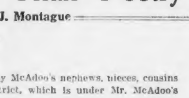
AS ruler of the Treasuree
I've not forgot my family tree,
And now at last I've got my chance,
And so have my nephews and my cousins and my aunts,
My nephews and my cousins—
And their number runs to dozens—
And my aunts.

I AM drawing, I may say,
Quite a tidy hunk of pay
For running Uncle Sam's finance!
And so are my nephews and my nieces and my aunts,
My nephews and my nieces—
And the count each day increases—
And my aunts.

LOOK the payroll through and through
And the name of McAdoo
On every page will meet your glance.
They all are my nephews and my cousins and my aunts
And my other blood connections,
Who have come from different sections,
And my aunts.



THERE are nice, soft places still
Which I've not had time to fill,
A most unhappy circumstance,
For all of my nephews and my nieces and my aunts
And my various relations
Who are out of occupations,
And my aunts.



BUT as soon as jobs expire
All the family I'll hire.
For I've staked them all out in advance,
For my sisters and my cousins and my nephews and my aunts,
All my nieces and my cousins
Will be drawing pay by dozens,
Like my aunts.

Taking a Chance

The Mexican bandits may arouse the wrath of the Administration after all. Among their victims was a British citizen.

Partial Disqualification

Of course, if Mr. Taft should go on the Supreme Bench his obligations would prevent him from deciding any case between States in which either Utah or Vermont was concerned.

Asking Too Much

"Britain Demands Trade Secrets of American Corporations." Well, perhaps Britain can get them, but the Department of Justice has never been able to.

A Seasonable Song

When all the Christmas bills are paid
And fervently you thank
Your stars because you now may put
A little in the bank,
When what you've got's a little more,
Perhaps, than what you owe,
You're sure to hear: "Oh, dear! Oh! dear,
The coal is running low!"
The coal you viewed so proudly when
The coal man put it in,
The seven tons that overflowed
The grimy cellar bin,
"The best coal," said the coal man,
"that You've bought in ages past."
And he was right, that anthracite
Was far too good to last!

Anti-Hookey School Houses In Wisconsin

In Wisconsin they are building school houses with moving picture annexes, so that in case of unaccounted for absences the truant officers will know right where to look.

Refining Refinements

It will get so pretty soon that a man who sells a tract of real estate for a golf course will be classed as a professional golfer.

Twelve-Cylinder and High Speed

There seems to be no grade on Price Hill too steep for gasoline to take.

Ask the Slacker

Not an Unmixed Evil

Well, anyway, another New Haven trial will keep at least five of the directors from interfering so much with the conduct of the road.

Motherhood Greatest Career of Women

All the Progressive Ideas of All the Centuries Can Never Change the Laws of Life, Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, Star Co.

HERE is an interesting letter that comes all the way from New Brunswick. It is from a woman, and she says:

"Through the wrong-headed ideas inculcated in my youth I have made an awful mess of my life and nearly ruined my husband's life, but at last we have won back our Eden. When I was a little girl I used to dream of my children. I planned that my first little girl was to be named Alison, and I passed many happy hours thinking how I would dress her and care for her.

"I married at seventeen. I was then studying at an art school and my parents objected to my marrying, as they desired me to have a 'career,' but as my health broke down in the school they finally gave consent to have me leave, and I was married.

"I was ignorant and innocent and my parents were so unwise in their ideas of life that they considered it improper for me to visit a young married friend who nourished her baby in nature's way. They thought it an 'indecent' thing for me to see.

Children Regarded as Burden Instead of Greatest of Blessings

"When I was expecting my first child I was filled with happiness. I was in a state of rapture. But as soon as my condition became known my friends regarded it as a calamity; my mother was angry and my mother-in-law said it was a pity. I tried to speak of my happiness, but no one would listen. But I found a number who were anxious to discuss morbid, unwholesome and distressing conditions with me.

"When my second child came there was a great uproar. My husband and myself had to make apologies. The opinions of my friends pressed upon me, embittering and spoiling my joy. My husband grew to dislike the atmosphere of our home and I was far too nervous to make a good wife.

"We lived in sorrow for many years, but gradually came to a simpler, truer understanding of life. In my heart I am so happy in my new-found womanliness, and I am writing to tell you that many things I have seen in this column have helped to straighten me. I have found it very hard to be a real woman in these days. I get very angry when I see how I wasted my energies and vitality at the art school.

"My relatives talked of my 'gift' and allowed me to waste my inheritance of health before I knew its value. Then when I wanted to be happy with the real gift of motherhood they made it so difficult for me. My little dream-child Alison, instead of being my first child, was my fifth. She bears that name.

"I would like to know why a girl of seventeen is not old enough to decide for herself whether she will train for a career in which she has little chance for real success, or for the career of wifehood and motherhood toward which her whole nature turns.

"It seems to me the tendency of the day is away from nature's method, don't you think so?"

The writer of the letter explains also that she was allowed to marry without proper knowledge of what wifehood and motherhood mean. The world is full of wrecks which have resulted from this kind of wrong education by stupid or selfish parents.

It cannot be laid to the fault of the modern idea of progress that girls are not taught more on the subject of wifehood and maternity, because in the days of our grandmothers the same conditions prevailed.

No Other Career for Women So Wonderful as That of Motherhood

Girls were, to be sure, taught to be good housekeepers, cooks and seamstresses, but the vital problems relating to marriage and maternity were kept from them until they faced them.

Children were, perhaps, more "fashionable" in those days than they are now, but an understanding of the care, the feeding, the dressing of new-born children, or an understanding of prenatal influences are more familiar to young women today than they were in the olden days.

All the progressive ideas of all the centuries can never change the laws of life and substitute any career for woman which is so wonderful, so beautiful, so great as motherhood, when it is understood and appreciated and desired.

Fighting the Grip

PART TWO

THERE is probably no real connection, save that of coincidence, between "January thaws" and the grip, but if there be any it is that the sudden rise in the outside temperature usually takes twenty-four to forty-eight hours to penetrate the janitor's skull and lower the steam pressure, so that our rooms and buildings become tropical conservatories, forcing larger crops of bugs into bloom and making them carry farther on and live longer after a sneeze.

There there is no reason to shield yourself timorously from the weather and the tonic breath of the keen northwest wind, or to avoid the open air in any form or at any reasonable temperature either day or night, not even the "raw, poison-laden night air," as a venerable and respected contemporary editorially terms it.

As a matter of fact the open air is the safest place to be during an epidemic, and the more of your time you can spend in it, or in a free current of it, commonly called a draft, the better your chance of escape.

So far as catching the grip is concerned, food of any sort has very little effect either one way or the other. But when it comes to throwing it off quickly and recovering cleanly and completely, a rich, abundant, nutritious diet is of the greatest importance.

In fact, next after rest in bed, the most effective and valuable remedy that we have against the disease is appetising, stimulating, readily digestible food, which means meat and plenty of it.

Advice to eat sparingly, particularly of meat, during an invasion of the grip, is little more than one of those echoes from the Dark Ages which we found it so hard to sweep out of our minds, and while given with a grave face and perfect sincerity as pure science, is really based upon the old idea that fasting is of itself meritorious and may avert the wrath of the gods, and that abstaining from anything that you particularly like is sure to be good for you.

The one point at which all low-protein, little-meat, and vegetarian food fads break down, is that their devotees simply cannot stand the attack of any form of infection.

They may get along fairly without visible harm for months, or even a year or two, by utilizing our wonderful ancestral tolerance of starvation, born of survival of a thousand famines, but just let a little ordinary, stuffy cold in the head, or common sore throat strike them and down they go under it as if it were pleuro-pneumonia or the Black Death itself.

They are dreadfully poor life risks, and most of them die or reform within ten or fifteen years, unless they wait until they are old and tough before they begin their vagaries.

There is no known food which raises and supports our resisting powers against infectious disease as meat does, while as for the bad effects which were supposed to come from its liberal use—gout, rheumatism and the like—we now know that at least three-fourths of them are due to various forms of smouldering focal infections, particularly about the roots of the teeth and pockets of the tonsils, and have nothing whatever to do with food, whether animal or vegetable.
